AFTER STOCK TAKING

Clearance Sale

—OF—

CARPET AND MATTING REMNANTS.

AND THIS IS THE WHY! At the end of every season the carpet mills are in the habit of dropping out a goodly portion of the previous season's patterns to make way for the new designs that must take up the looms. Every carpet store then finds itself in possession of a quantity of "short ends" or remnants, sometimes the most desirable patterns in its stock, which it is impossible to get more of.

Some concerns hang on to these one-room pieces hoping the customers will come along some day who will need just the amount—no need to sacrifice them. Not so here—we hunt for the customers. Got a room to cover? Bring on the measure get the remnant out of our way and keep the extra $5 or $10 in your own pocket.

Best Body Brussels,
Regular $1.25 and $1.50 grades.
89c. per yard made and laid.

Best Hartford Velvets,

ALMOST WIPED OUT OF EXISTENCE

Town of Washington, Ark., Struck by Tornado.

Buildings Destroyed and Several People Injured.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., March 1.—A despatch to the Arkansas Democrat from Hope, Ark., says that a destructive tornado struck the town of Washington late last night, and almost literally wiped it out of existence. Two negroes are reported killed and several persons were injured. Among the buildings destroyed were the Presbyterian church, Episcopal church, Judge W. Y. Etter's residence, T. H. Williams's store, the residence of Sheriff Wilson and other structures. All wires are down.

FORCES STILL FIGHTING.

Nicaragua Said to Have Won in Actions With Honduras.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Official advices received by the State Department today are to the effect that there has been constant fighting between the forces of Nicaragua and Honduras, in which Nicaragua is stated to have won the preliminary actions. Great enthusiasm exists in Nicaragua, particularly on account of the aggressions of Salvador, which is lending aid to Honduras. Nicaragua is preparing to resist this interference, which is interpreted here to mean that an invasion of Salvador is in prospect.

TO RECOMPENSE HIS LOSS.

Oliver May Find Way to Bring Legal Action Against Government.

WASHINGTON, March 1.— William J. Oliver, Jr., today called at the offices of the Isthmian Canal Commission and received from Mr. Rogers, the commission's counsel, the certified check for $200,000, which was submitted at the time Mr. Oliver presented his bid for constructing the Panama canal on a percentage basis. Mr. Oliver intimated that he might find some way of bringing legal action against the government to recompense him for the loss he has sustained in connection with the preparation of his bids.

CHINESE MINISTER PRESIDENT.

Annual Meeting of Washington Alumni Association of Andover Academy.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—At the annual meeting of the Washington Alumni Association of Andover Academy, Sir Chentung Liang-Cheng, minister from China to the United States, was elected president of the association. The meeting, which was held last night, was addressed by Ephraim Adams of Waterloo, Iowa, of the class of 1884. John McIlhenny of Louisiana, recently appointed as a member of the civil service commission, was among those elected to membership. The Chinese minister presided over the meeting.

GRADUAL STEADY PROGRESS.

Ex-Ambassador von Meyer Says Czar of Russia Favors Reform.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Nicholas will continue to rule Russia in spite of all upheavals and internal strife, in the opinion of George von L. Meyer, late American ambassador to Russia, who arrived here today on steamer Teutonic. Mr. Myer said that conditions in that country, both political and social, are vastly improved over those of a year ago. He looks for gradual, steady progress in the same direction, and believes that by the end of another generation the Muscovite empire will have recovered to a normal condition. He said that in his opinion Emperor Nicholas is sincerely in favor of reform in the government of his country.

"Nicholas is a young man—I believe a sincere young man—and his intentions as regards his people are of the best. It may be a generation before conditions in Russia become normal again, but when that time comes I believe Nicholas will still be found to be the ruler of the country."

Mr. Meyer is the bearer of a message from King Edward to President Roosevelt.

IN NATURE OF FAREWELL.

Cabinet Meeting the Last for Secretaries Shaw and Hitchcock.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Today's cabinet meeting was in the nature of a farewell to two of its members, who next Monday, retire to private life, they being Secretary of the Treasury Shaw and Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock. With the retirement of Secretary Hitchcock, Secretary Wilson will be the only member of the late President McKinley's cabinet who has remained consecutively in that of the present chief executive.

AS NATIONAL ANTHEM.

Admiral Dewey Instrumental in Adoption of "Star Spangled Banner."

WASHINGTON, March 1.—Admiral Dewey told the story of the adoption of the "Star Spangled Banner" as the national anthem at a meeting of the Francis Scott Key Memorial Association here last night. He said he was instrumental in its adoption by this government, saying that once, while he was abroad and was dining with Prince Henry of Prussia on the latter's flagship, the band played "Hail Columbia." He called the prince's attention to the fact that it was not a national anthem, and referred to the "Star Spangled Banner." Later he and Justice Moody, then Secretary of the Navy, discussed the incident, the result of which was the issuance of the President's order designating the "Star Spangled Banner" as the recognized national anthem of this government.

THAW VICTIM OF AN ACUTE ATTACK

Had Suffered from Adolescent Insanity.

Dr. Evans Examines More of Defendant's Letters.

NEW YORK, March 1.—District Attorney Jerome's intention of applying for a commission in lunacy to examine Harry K. Thaw seemed to be definitely established today, during the continuance of his cross-examination of Dr. B. D. Evans, the principal medical expert for the defense. Dr. Evans stated that he believed Thaw to have been suffering from adolescent insanity in 1903 and at the time of his marriage, April 4, 1905, and that when he killed Stanford White, June 25, 1906, he was the victim of an acute and recurrent attack of the same mental malady. Dr. Evans was more definite in his answers today, and was inquced to make these statements with positiveness.

Mr. Jerome constantly referred to the subject of paranola, but was unable to secure from the witness any admission that would tend to show Thaw a paranoiac. But from this line of questioning, it seems probable that the prosecution will attempt to show that instead of being afflicted with the insanity of adolescence Thaw is actually a paranoiac.

When the trial opened District Attorney Jerome announced that there had been received a second packet of letters from J. D. Lyon, the Pittsburg banker, who until November last had custody of Thaw's will. The letters received today were written to Mr. Lyon by Thaw while in the Tombs and all bear dates subsequent to June 25 last. Mr. Lyon first sent on only letters written prior to the roof garden tragedy.

Mr. Jerome was very anxious to have the later letters, and they were sent on by consent of Thaw's attorneys. The letters are held subject to the court's orders.

Dr. Britton D. Evans was recalled as soon as the letters from Pittsburg had been examined by counsel, and Mr. Jerome continued his cross-examination of the alienist.

"Taking all the letters you have read in the light of all you know about this case, what is your opinion as to the mental condition of this defendant at the time he wrote these letters?" was Mr. Jerome's first question.

Mr. Delmas objected, and after some argument Mr. Jerome asked:

"Taking everything that you have testified to into consideration, what, in your opinion, was the mental condition of the defendant when he wrote those letters?"

"He was in a state of mental instability."

"Do you mean that he was insane?"

"Not necessarily. He was in a state of mental unsteadiness."

Mr. Jerome handed the witness a copy of the letter Thaw wrote to Anthony Comstock, complaining of the "dens of vice" maintained by Stanford White and "other rich scoundrels for the ruin of young girls."

After Dr. Evans had examined the paper some 20 minutes, Mr. Jerome asked him if anything in the letter suggested the mental state of the writer.

"It shows," said the expert, "that his mind seemed to be running upon young women and their supposed wrongs."

"Anything else?"

"It indicates a delusive state in the writer's mind."

"Were the delusions of an exalted or depressed nature?"

"I don't think there is enough in the letter for anybody to say as to that."

"Are not the ideas or delusions shown in Thaw's will and codicil more concentrated than in the letters?" asked Mr. Jerome.

"Yes, that is my opinion," was the answer.

The will and codicil were written some years after the letters, and Dr. Evans's answer would indicate that in his opinion Thaw's mental diseases changed in form and became more serious.

Mr. Jerome then took up the nine letters and began asking the witness if, in his opinion, considering all other things in the case, the writer was insane when the letters were written. Yesterday Dr. Evans was obliged to state his opinion on each letter, excluding everything else.

"This letter shows an unsteady state of mind," said the witness regarding the first letter. He would be no more definite.

"Was the defendant insane?"

"The unsteadiness had perhaps not reached the stage of unbalance or insanity."

Dr. Evans refused to even attempt to classify the unsteadiness, saying it often took months to classify a case when under close observation and it was impossible to try to do it on the strength of a letter.

"Then you cannot say what was the form of the mental instability?" suggested Mr. Jerome.

"It was no particular form."

Mr. Jerome next had the witness take up each one of the nine letters in turn, asking an opinion as to the state of mind of the writer at the time of the writing, taking into consideration everything connected with the case, including Mr. Delmas's long hypothetical question.

"As to exhibit A," said Dr. Evans, "I would say the writer was bordering on insane instability; that he was over the border."

"In what direction?" insisted the prosecutor.

"There's only one way over," said Dr. Evans, "over into insanity."

"You mean he was moving toward insanity?"

"He was further over than when some of the other letters were written."

"This letter shows a state of mental unsoundness in the writer at the time it was written," said Dr. Evans, in reference to exhibit G.

"At last we have got a letter which shows the defendant insane."

"In a degree, yes."

"What sort of insanity was it?"

"I can't diagnose it from letters—no man could."

"What kind of acute mania did he suffer from?"

"I cannot tell. If of any at all, it was a very mild form."

Exhibit H, the doctor said threw

MOVE TO CAPTURE THE HOUSE FAILS

Democrats Organize But Lack a Quorum.

Question the Legality of Thursday's Session.

(Special despatch to the News.)

PROVIDENCE, March 1.—The Democrats made an attempt to capture the house today. For several days they have objected to the house being called to order at such a late hour, and this morning at 11:15 Recording Clerk Howland was directed to call the house to order. He doubted his authority to do this, and Representative Greene of Providence called the house to order and was elected Speaker pro tem. The election was by viva voce vote, while the rules of the house call for a ballot for the election of a Speaker pro tem. If it had not been for this weakness in the procedure, the action of the Democrats would have been legal. However, there was still another difficulty, for after Representative L. A. Waterman had been elected clerk the roll was called and it was found that there was no quorum, so adjournment was had until Tuesday.

Half an hour later Speaker Burchard called the House to order for the regular session and the Democrats began at once the same tactics which they employed yesterday, by objecting to the records and trying to have them amended. They also made the claim that yesterday's session was illegal, and Mr. Rattey introduced a resolution to ask the supreme court as to the legality of yesterday's session. He wanted action taken on this immediately, but it was not done.

The only other business was the introduction by Mr. Peck of an act for the re-organization of the militia in accordance with the Dick bill.

The senate had a brief session.

The act providing for a relief station on Block Island was taken from the calendar and recommitted to the committee on special legislation, for correction.

The judiciary committee reported tch act prohibiting the use of "pump" or automatic shotguns with a recommendation of indefinite postponement, and it was placed on the calendar.

VACANCY IN THE SENATE ASSURED.

Wetmore's Term Will Expire Without an Election.

No Essential Change in Today's Balloting.

(Special despatch to the News.)

PROVIDENCE, March 1.—Another unsuccessful ballot for United States Senator was taken today by the legislature, and as a result Senator Wetmore, whose term expires at noon Monday, will not be a member of the Senate and Rhode Island will have a vacancy in its representation in Congress until the legislature elects. There were three absentees, one each from the Goddard, Colt and Wetmore forces, Lieutenant Governor Jackson being the Wetmore adherent, Senator Arnold of Westerly the Colt man, and Representative Gauvin of Woonsocket, the Goddard supporter. The ballot resulted as follows:

For Robert H. I. Goddard, 40.
For Samuel P. Colt, 37.
For George P. Wetmore, 30.
For George H. Utter, 1.

THREE FAMILIES OVERCOME.

Gas From Broken Main Filled South Boston Block.

BOSTON, March 1.—Three families, consisting of 33 persons, were overcome by gas in a block at West Fourth street, South Boston, today. Almost all were unconscious when found, and seven, including the children of Coleman Walsh and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Yates, are still in a serious condition. It is expected, however, that all will recover. The gas filled the entire block and came from a broken main.

This Morning's News.

THAW PRAISES HIS WIFE.

Gives out Statement Accusing Jerome of Unprofessional Conduct.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Harry K. Thaw today furnished the only enlivening and sensational incident of the otherwise dull and uninteresting session of the court by giving out to newspaper men a brief statement, in which he accused District Attorney Jerome of having made unprofessional remarks in court, asserted that his wife's testimony was absolute truth, and in conclusion declared that Mrs. Thaw's natural, real goodness was above the comprehension of the prosecuting officer.

It was just before adjournment was taken for the day, and after the long hours of wearisome expert testimony had almost cleared the room of spectators, that Thaw caused much excitement by giving out his statement in court. The circumstances attending the delivery of the statement to the newspaper men were about as interesting as the statement itself, which reads:

"This is Mr. Thaw's second statement since August 10.

"With chances millions to one against her after the catastrophe of 1901, it is wonderful that Mrs. H. K. Thaw prevailed in the cross-examination against the prosecution backed by blacklegs.

"Her testimony was absolute truth.

"Our evidence was of conversations. The cross-examination has proved the exact facts under oath.

"Mr. Jerome,finding his informants in certain lines falsifiers, concluded by more usual methods, which is to his credit.

"However, from some of his questions and some of his unprofessional remarks in court it appeared clearly that the natural and real goodness of the witness is above his comprehension."

Thaw began the preparation of this statement yesterday afternoon. One of the newspaper tables adjoins the table occupied by his counsel, and a reporter sitting near the defendant read over the latter's shoulder the two opening paragraphs. When the papers appeared yesterday with the extracts from his statement printed in display type, Thaw was much chagrined. Today in court he took the reporter to task. He said he had not intended making the statement public until the end of the trial. He further asserted that many mistakes appeared in the portion of the statement which was published and added that he might make a correction later.

Last night in his cell in the Tombs Thaw completed his statement and today, after he had spoken to the reporter who had looked over his shoulder, he handed the original draft to another reporter whom he has known for many weeks and in whom he had implicit confidence. He also handed the newspaper man a brown envelope.

"Seal the statement up in this envelope," said Thaw, "and write your name across the flap. I am going to have some typewritten copies made, and when they are completed I want you to compare them with the original and if they are all right they will be given out."

Daniel O'Reilly, one of Thaw's lawyers, said later that he also had a copy of Thaw's statement, but would not give it out until the defendant directed him to do so.

Late this afternoon the typewritten copies suddenly appeared in court. Attention was first attracted to them by Thaw handing a carbon copy to his newspaper friend and asking him to compare it with the original. Four or five other copies lay on the counsel table in front of the defendant. One of the reporters reached over, picked up the copies and hastily left the court room. He was quickly followed by other reporters. The copies and the original were exact, and Thaw then said he was content to have the statement released as a correction to the garbled statement which appeared this morning.

Clifford Hartridge of Thaw's counsel, and Mr. Delmas declared they had no knowledge of the statement having been prepared or given out.

In one particular, Jerome got Dr. Evans pretty badly twisted. He took up the hypothetical question on which Dr. Evans had based the opinion that Thaw as insane the night he killed Stanford White, and asked the witness what were the assumptions in that question on which he formed the opinion that Thaw was insane at that time. Dr. Evans named a number of things that were in the hypothetical question, but he also named a few things that were not in it at all. The principal one concerned Mrs. William Thaw, the prisoner's mother, who has not testified, and referred to parental influences on the defendant. There was nothing of this nature in the hypothetical question.

Mr. Jerome inquired about the notes Dr. Evans made when he examined Thaw in the Tombs. Dr. Evans said he had turned them over to Thaw's lawyers, or at least they were left on a stenographer's desk in the office of the lawyers. Dr. Evans said he considered the notes confidential, and promptly told Mr. Jerome, who asked if he would produce them, that he would not do so. Justice Fitzgerald showed no inclination to issue a court order for them, but Mr. Jerome had Assistant District Attorney Garvan make out an order for them. Just how Mr. Jerome expects to get possession of the notes was not made clear tonight.

RESIGNED FROM CHOICE.

No Truth in Report That Stevens Was Impertinent to Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—It was declared by officials here that there is no truth in the reports that Chief Engineer John F. Stevens of the Panama canal was forced to resign because he had written an impertinent letter to the President in which he attempted to dictate what should and what should not be done. It is stated that Mr. Stevens did not try to dictate to the President, and that he did not threaten to resign if the contract for the construction of the canal was given to William J. Oliver and his associates.

It is true that Mr. Stevens advised against giving the work to Oliver. He believed that the company which the contractor had formed could not do the work and that he could not get along with the men who would necessarily be associated with him.

Mr. Stevens's letter of resignation was written January 30 and was received by the President February 12. In it there was no mention of the plans for building the canal by contract, nor of any phases of the status of the bids which had been submitted. Prior to this time Stevens had cabled the President about the bids which were then under consideration, and as the investigation of the resources of the bidders progressed Mr. Stevens was kept informed.

In the various exchanges of cablegrams Mr. Stevens made no mention of his intention to resign, and when his letter asking to be relieved came the administration was greatly vexed and embarrassed. The President cabled Mr. Stevens accepting his resignation February 14. This cable mentioned no comment, it is understood, and the administration took the view that if Mr. Stevens wanted to leave there would be no urging him to stay on the job.

The Stevens letter also said that he resented the criticisms that had been passed upon him by members of the Senate and others and that he was unwilling to continue under these circumstances. He concluded by asking that his resignation be accepted as soon as his place could be filled.

CRIME INCREASING IN FRANCE.

Government Alarmed and Action Taken to Cope With Situation.

PARIS, Feb. 28.—The general feeling of alarm created by the increase of crime in France was echoed in the Chamber of Deputies today by an interpellation of the government upon the insecurity of life and property in Paris and in the country. Along the Belgian frontier a regular gang of bandits has been robbing and murdering for two years. The streets of Paris, especially in the Monmarte district, are terrorized by "apaches" as they are termed, and are no longer safe for pedestrians. The newspapers are filled daily with stories of robberies and assassinations, the victims being struck down with knives

M. Cochin, Liberal, in the chamber today declared that in many sections of the country the gendarmerie were utterly unable to cope with the brigands, and the inhabitants were arming for self-protection.

M. Berry, Conservative, in describing the deplorable condition of Paris, gave a list of 88 murders committed in the streets of the capital since January 1.

Premier Clemenceau, in reply, said the government recognized the growing state of insecurity and a flying brigade of picked policemen had been organized in Paris, similar to the regional brigades which were being formed in the country, to cope with the marauders.

Canal Excavation for February 550,000 Cubic Yards.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—According to a cablegram received at the War Department today from Chief Engineer Stevens, the excavation of Culebra cut for the month of February will amount to almost 550,000 cubic yards. Mr. Stevens says that the present organization working one shift can in the near future put out approximately 1,000,000 yards monthly.

Succession to Throne of Duchy of Brunswick.

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—Chancellor Von Buelow presided today at a meeting of the federal council, at which the question of the succession to the throne of the Duchy of Brunswick was considered. The council decided unanimously that under the present circumstances no member of the House of Cumberland will be allowed to succeed to the throne of Brunswick.

HOME AN ICEHOUSE.

Franklin Magrath, a broker of Brooklyn, owning a summer home in the Berkshires, near Monterey, found ice four feet high in the kitchen there recently. The stove was not visible. Furniture in other parts of the house was also hidden under ice. A leaking water pipe had caused the damage. The cellar is supposed to be frozen solid.

KING EDWARD'S TACTFUL MOVE.

His Visit to Paris With His Queen Promotes Friendly Feeling Between France and England.

[Marquise de Fontenoy.]

From a political point of view, King Edward did an extremely clever thing in persuading the queen to accompany him on his recent visit to Paris. It is not merely that his consort is universally admired throughout France as a gracious, kindly, tactful and extremely elegant woman—the ideal, indeed, in the eyes of the French, of what a queen, a wife and a mother should be; but it was the fact that she and the king came together, not on a state visit, but on a sort of non-official holiday, in a "Darby and Joan" way, in spite of the fact that they are within five years of the time of their golden wedding.

Too often the anointed of the Lord, in visiting the French capital, have made a point of leaving their wives at home, as calculated to interfere with their enjoyment of their Parisian holiday, and have then taken advantage thereof to give themselves up to pleasures and forms of entertainment which are in no sense of the word a Gallic monopoly, but in which they would not dare to indulge at home for fear of shocking their fellow countrymen. This, of course, can only be interpreted to mean that they are not afraid of shocking the French, and that in their eyes the sense of propriety of the population of Paris is on a distinctly inferior plane to that of their people at home. The Parisians and the French people in general, as might be expected, strongly resent this imputation, and that is why certain royal and imperial persons, though frequent visitors to Paris, are quite the reverse of popular there, and why the joint visit of the King and Queen of England—an unofficial, that is to say, a holiday visit—was a source of quiet gratification to the Parisians, which served to still further promote the friendly feeling between the two countries.

It was, however, during the days of Napoleon III that France and her executive were subjected to the grossest affronts of the kind to which I have alluded above. In 1867, for instance, when Paris was visited by most of the foreign sovereigns and princes of the blood, they well nigh without exception left their wives at home, and in the instance of one powerful monarch in particular, he declined, on the night of his arrival, to attend the dinner organized in his honor by Napoleon and Empress Eugenie at the Tuileries, on the pretext of fatigue, but after dining privately with his suite, in his apartments at the palace, drove off to the theatre, in order to attend a performance of Offenbach's comic opera, "La Grande Duchesse," occupying the principal box in the house, which had been draped with the flags of his country, and adorned with flowers in his honor. For on crossing the French frontier he had caused a telegram to be sent to the management of the theatre ordering a box for the night of his arrival and inviting Hortense Schneider, who filled the title role, to supper with him at the Maison Dorée after the performance.

HOMELY ART CRITICISM.

An aged woman was standing before a beautiful picture of a blacksmith in a local department store. The picture was a remarkable painting, and had evoked so much praise that hundreds of visitors thronged around it. The figure was that of a village blacksmith standing at his forge, which was blazing with a light that illuminated the whole room.

The woman came to the canvas with several younger women, apparently her children. They all stood with rapt attention before the work of art, contemplating the light effects and the beautiful shadows. One of the younger women asked of the elderly one what she thought of the picture. "Well, it's all right but the sleeves," she replied. "I lived in the country a long time and I know something that the painter with all his knowin' didn't know. That blacksmith's sleeves are rolled out. Now they don't wear them that way. A blacksmith always turns his sleeves in so the flying sparks won't catch."

ACHED IN EVERY BONE.

Chicago Society Woman Who Was So Sick She Could Not Sleep or Eat, Cured by Doan's Kidney Pills.

When a woman's kidneys go wrong, her back gives out and every little task becomes a burden. She is tired, nervous, sleepless, run down—suffers daily from backache, headaches, dizzy spells, and bearing-down pains.

Don't worry over imagined "female troubles." Cure the kidneys and you will be well. Read how to find the cure.

Marion Knight, of 33 N. Ashland Ave., Chicago, Ill., member of the Chicago Federation of Musicians and a well-known club woman, says: "This winter when I started to use Doan's Kidney Pills I ached in every bone and had intense pains in the kidneys and pelvic organs. The urine was thick and cloudy, and I could barely eat enough to live. I felt a change for the better within a week. The second week I began eating heartily. I began to improve generally, and before seven weeks had passed I was well. I had spent hundreds of dollars for medicine that did not help me, but $6 worth of Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to perfect health."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Miss Knight will be mailed on application to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price, fifty cents per box.

A HOME DINNER FOR LENT.

Menu Adapted to Any Section of the Country.

White Fish May Be Substituted for Haddock and Any Green Vegetable for Spinach.

[Cornelia C. Bedford.]

Whether religiously inclined or not the change in diet brought to our notice will be beneficial since, with the spring days, lighter foods will bring us to summer weather in good physical condition. The menu suggested today can, by means of a little thought, be fitted to any part of the country. For inland sections white fish may replace haddock and any green vegetable in season be substituted for spinach.

Potato and Onion Soup.
Baked Fresh Haddock.
Red Bean Croquettes,
Spinach, Swiss Style.
Fetticus French Dressing
Wafers Cheese
Bananas in Jelly.
Coffee.

In preparing this dinner for six persons, take for the soup five large potatoes and three onions. Peel and chop the onions, pare, dice and rinse the potatoes. Mix, add a half teaspoonful of salt and one pint of boiling water, cover and simmer slowly until the potatoes break, then rub all through a sieve. Scald a pint of milk with a stalk of celery or a pinch of celery seed, strain, mix with the puree and return to the fire. Add one level tablespoonful of flour blended with a little cold milk and stir until slightly thickened. Add white peper and more salt, if necessary; if too thick thin with a little hot milk. Simmer for 10 minutes and when in the tureen sprinkle with a teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley.

Select a nice haddock weighing four or five pounds and have it drawn through the gills. From a half loaf of stale baker's bread cut off the crust; cover this with cold water, soak, for a few minutes then squeeze as dry as possible and mix it with the crumbled whitis portion. Chop fine three slices of salt pork and fry slowly with two tablespoonfuls of chopped onion until the fat is well tried out and the onion slightly yellowed. Mix with the prepared bread, add one tablespoonful of chopped parsley and a high seasoning of salt and pepper. With this lightly fill the fish. Gash the sides and in the gashes put strips of fat salt pork. Arrange in a swimming position in a dripping pan, propping with small raw potatoes. Pour round it one pint of thin tomato sauce and bake in a moderate oven until the fins can easily be pulled out; baste three times with the sauce. In serving strain the sauce remaining in the pan, thinning or thickening as needed and adding seasoning to taste.

Boiled red or kidney beans which have been left from a previous meal may be used for the croquettes or they may be freshly prepared. Soak the beans over night, boil in slightly salted water until very soft, then drain. Press one pint through a ricer, add the beaten yolks of two eggs, salt and cayenne to taste, one teaspoonful of onion juice and one tablespoonful of choped parsley. Form into tiny balls or cylinders, dip each into slightly beaten white of egg, roll in fine dry bread crumbs and fry, three or four at a time, in smoking-hot fat.

A large half peck of spinach will be none too much, as it shrinks in the cooking. Pick over, discarding roots and yellowed leaves, then wash repeatedly until entirely free from sand and grit. Boil in a large quantity of salted water until barely tender. Drain, throw into a pan of cold water until chilled, then drain again, pressing to make as dry as possible. In a shallow kettle heat two tablespoonfuls of butter, drop in one teaspoonful of chopped onion, and three cloves and cook very gently for five minutes. Skim out the cloves, add the spinach with salt and pepper to taste, mix thoroughly and stir for three minutes. Add two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and as soon as smoking hot turn into a heated dish and garnish with triangles of toasted bread.

The small salad plant botanically known as fetticus and popularly called corn salad, has a thin leaf of sweet, delicate flavor. It can be usually found in our large markets from late in December until the first dandelions appear, as it is now cultivated commercially. In its stead watercress of any available salad green may be substituted. In any case pick over the leaves thoroughly, removing stems and wilted portions, and let stand in cold water to crisp and freshen. Drain thoroughly, patting dry on a soft towel or cloth. Arrange in the salad bowl and either at the table or just before serving sprinkle over this simple French dressing. Mix together a half teaspoonful of salt, one quarter of a teaspoonful of black pepper and four tablespoonfuls of olive oil. Slowly drop in one tablespoonful of plain or tarragon vinegar, stirring until the two liquids are well blended, then add at once to the salad. With this serve saltines and any preferred kind of cheese.

Soak half a package of gelatine in a half cupful of cold water. Boil together for two minutes a half cupful of sugar and one pint of water. Add the soaked gelatine, stir until dissolved, then take from the fire. When partly cool add the juice of two large lemons and strain. In a wetted mold pour half an inch of the liquid jelly and set aside to stiffen, keeping the remainder in a warm place that it may not thicken. When the jelly in the mold is firm spread over it a layer of sliced bananas, add enough jelly to cover and again set aside. As each layer stiffens add another until the ingredients are used. Just before dinner turn out carefully and serve on a pretty dish.

For each person allow one tablespoonful of finely ground coffee and two thirds of a cupful of boiling water. Use any kind of a drip pot and serve the coffee strong, clear and boiling hot, passing cream and sugar for those who desire such additions.

MAJOR GOETHALS'S PLANS.

The announcement of Major Goethals's appointment as chief engineer of the canal project was at once followed by a descent upon that officer by many people, from all quarters, upon all sorts of pleas. It was intended that Major Goethals, who knew something of his selection a week or more ago, should get away from New York before the formal announcement was made from the White House.

Major Goethals will proceed at once to the isthmus, and make a general inspection of the work done, and consult with subordinate engineers regarding the work to be done. It is not known just how long he will remain on the isthmus, but he expects to make his headquarters in Washington, visiting the isthmus periodically, and keeping in close touch with the situation there through Majors Gilliard and Sibert, who will assist him. On his return to Washington Major Goethals will re-organize the office of the Canal Commission.

WINS THIRD MATCH IN SERIES.

Y. M. C. A. Takes Three Straight Strings from Father Mathew—Williams's Defeats Barnes's.

The third in the series of five bowling matches between the representative teams of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Father Mathew Total Abstinence Society was bowled last evening on the Father Mathew alleys, the association team winning three straight strings, giving six games to three for their opponents in the series. The bowling was excellent, four members of the winning team and two of the losing team making better than an average of 90 a string. E. A. Martin was high roller, making a single of 112 and a total of 259. J. J. Martin made a single of 101. J. Sullivan one of 103 and Ward one of 104. The individual and team scores were as follows:

Young Men's Christian Association.

Creaney,	82	78	88	248
	431	443	422	1296

In the Knights of Columbus tournament Williams's team won two out of three strings from Barnes's team. The third string was a tie and Williams's team won on the play-off. Barnes made the high single 105, and Leary the high total, 287, which included a single of 102. The individual and team scores were as follows:

Williams's Team.

Red Custard For Consomme—Beat three yolks and one white of an egg until well mixed, then add one fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of paprika and half a cupful of tomato juice; strain into buttered mold large enough to make custard half an inch thick; poach in hot water in oven or on top of range until firm; cut in squares or diamonds and serve with individual portions.

Chicken Casserole—Wash half a cupful of rice; throw it into boiling water, boil for 20 minutes, drain, add half a cupful of milk, a tablespoonful of butter, half a teaspoonful of salt and an eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper; stir until you have a rather smooth, thick paste. Brush custard cups, line them to the depth of half an inch with this rice mixture. To one pint of cold seasoned chicken chopped fine add one cupful of cream sauce; fill the space in the rice cups with this cream mixture, put over a covering of rice, stand the cups in a pan of boiling water and bake in a moderate oven for 20 to 25 minutes; turn these carefully on a heated dish, pour around cream sauce and serve. They may be garnished with green peas or mushrooms.

Jacking Up a Tree for Moving.

ROMANY.

[Charles Hamilton Musgrove, in Lippincott's.]

The city frets in the distance, lass,
The city so grim and gray;
A glare in the sky by night, my lass,
And a bolt on the sky by day;
But we are out on the long white road,
And under the wide free sky,
And the song that was born in my heart today
Will sing there till I die.

The long white road and the wide free sky,
And the city far away;
A good-night kiss in the twilight, lass,
And a kiss at the break of day;
For light are the loads we bear, my lass,
By highway and hill and grove,
And the sunlight is all for life, my lass,
And the starlight all for love.

FANCIES.

"Did Perkins die a natural death?"

"Oh, yes. But I can't remember now whether he was murdered, killed in a railroad accident or hit by an automobile."—[Life.

Judge—What is your trade?

Prisoner (who was caught in a gambling-house raid)—I'm a locksmith.

Judge—What were you doing in there when the police entered?

Prisoner—I was making a bolt for the door.

"What are they moving the church for?"

"Well, stranger, I'm mayor of these diggin's, an' I'm for law enforcement. We've got an ordinance what says no saloon shall be nearer than 300 feet from a church. I gave 'em three days to move the church."—[Judge.

"You are a liar," declared a member of the constitutional convention.

"You are another," retorted the accused.

"Gentlemen, gentlemen," expostulated the chair mildly, "just pair and let us have peace."—[Philadelphia Ledger.

"Ye haven't seen our newest hotel, have ye?" asked an Irishman.

"No," replied the Yankee.

"Well," said the Irishman, "it's so tall that we have to put the two top stories on hinges."

"What for?" asked the American.

"So that we can let 'em down while the moon goes by!" said Pat.—[Tit-Bits.

A TOUCH OF WINTER.

Mail advices from White Horse, Y. T., under date of January 25, say: "Last Sunday was the coldest day of the winter at this place, the temperature being 70 below zero. Regular services were held at all the churches, but not to minstrel show crowds. At Yukon Crossing the temperature went to 82 below, according to the government thermometer, and nearly an inch of blue snow fell at Tantalus.

"At Minto, 20 miles below Yukon Crossing, ice worms began to chip at midnight Saturday, and many of them attained a growth of several inches by Monday morning, when the thermometer rose to 45 below, causing them to die from heat and suffocation. Yesterday and today the weather has been warm and sultry, the temperature having risen to 10 below zero. If the temperature rises many more degrees the suffering caused by the intense heat will be terrible."

HOW ABOUT IT?
Not just pleased with your coffee? Perhaps you are paying a quarter a pound and trying to believe that you are drinking a thirty-five cent coffee. Twenty-five cents will not buy a pound of the best coffee that grows, and you can readily find this out by consulting the price list of any reputable wholesale coffee house. If you are not pleased with what you are getting and want something better, try a pound of our private growth. You will not necessarily have to be a coffee expert to note its superior qualities. Just try it.

TEN PAGES.

TREASURY OFFICIALS AND BANKS.

Secretary Shaw will retire from the Treasury Department to take charge of a New York trust company, but he announces that his legal residence will remain in Iowa and there will be no constitutional obstacle in the way of the Hawkeye state putting him forward next year as her favorite son, if she shall care to do so.

In anticipation of what is now announced, the New York Journal of Commerce some weeks ago raised the question of the propriety of treasury officials taking the presidencies of banks and trust companies to which they might easily render important services while they are in office. It is a rather interesting problem in ethics, but so far we believe no scandal has grown out of the transfer of the highest treasury officials to the fields of private finance, though in one case the connection of a former assistant secretary with a bank has been suggested as an advantage to that bank in the way of securing information, but there is probably nothing in this.

Secretaries have not gone into banking very often, but comptrollers of the currency have. Their intimate relations with banking have resulted many times in the offer of bank presidencies to them. The prestige of a man who retires from the office of comptroller of the currency is a good asset for a bank.

Since Mr. Lincoln became President there have been 15 Secretaries of the Treasury, two of whom served twice. These were McCulloch and Windom. Two have died in office, Windom and Folger. Of the others, Salmon P. Chase became chief justice of the Supreme Court, Lot Morrill and William P. Fessenden, George S. Boutwell, Richardson and John Sherman, went back into political life. Mr. McCulloch was connected with a private banking house in New York and London for several years between his two terms of office. Mr. Windom headed some railroad enterprise between his two terms, under Garfield and Harrison. Mr. Bristow and Mr. Carlisle, both Kentuckians, dropped out of politics and practiced law in New York. Mr. Manning left the treasury on account of ill health, but grew better and took the presidency of a bank in New York. Mr. Fairchild retired from the treasury to a New York trust company, as Mr. Gage did and as Mr. Shaw is to do. Mr. Foster went back to Ohio and his merchandising, which suspended a little latter.

Assistant secretaries have rarely gone from the public service to banks. Mr. Vanderlip, who came from Chicago with Secretary Gage, is one of the vice presidents of the National City Bank, New York, and Mr. Armstrong, who came from Iowa as Secretary Shaw's private secretary is at the head of the Casualty Company. Mr. Snyder, the head of one of the New York banks went to Washington as Secretary Manning's private secretary, and was for a while deputy comptroller of the currency.

The comptrollership of the currency has been a regular stepping-stone to bank presidencies. The first comptroller was Mr. McCulloch, who joined a private banking house after being Secretary of the Treasury in the Andrew Johnson administration. John Jay Knox and Henry W. Cannon went to New York as bank presidents, and W. L. Trenholm went there as president of a surety company. A. B. Hepburn went to New York as vice president of a bank and has now succeeded Mr. Cannon in the presidency of the Chase National. Mr. Eckels is at the head of a bank in Chicago. Mr. Dawes is in the banking business in the West but did not go into it directly from the treasury; he resigned in an effort to be elected to the Senatorship and did not succeed. Mr. Ridgely is still in office and it has not become public that any bank presidency has been offered him, but his term of office is approaching its end and probably some bank or trust company is waiting for him.

THE WORKINGMEN AND IMMIGRATION.

It is an interesting fact that among the strongest advocates of restriction of immigration are the workingmen who not very long ago were immigrants themselves and glad enough to be allowed to enter this country without any conditions of education or means beyond the slight ones now enforced. Yet it is not at all strange that this should be the case, for these recent immigrants are now laborers among us and their viewpoint has greatly changed with this metamorphosis from immigrants to workingmen. When they wanted to come here they saw no need of placing restrictions upon those who desired to enter, but now that they are here and are earning money at good jobs they are not anxious that others should come and take their work away from them.

The difficulty from the standpoint of the workingmen is that the newcomers are generally willing to work for less pay than those who have been here long enough to become imbued with the ideas of those with whom they work and learn something of the principles of unionism, and so the men who have the jobs are all the time in fear, and in actual danger, that they will lose them and the work will be given to the latest arrivals, in the interest of economy for the employers. It is quite natural, therefore, that the workingmen of the country should be opposed to unrestricted immigration and strongly in favor of some limitations based upon education and means. They do not believe that these restrictions should be made too stringent, for they do not wish to exclude all who desire to come, but they think they should be strict enough to give some protection to the native workingmen and those who have been in this country for some time.

So the workingmen are ranged along with the men who have studied the economic problems and conditions which obtain here, and favor restriction of immigration as the solution of some of the evils which confront the country along these lines. From the standpoint of each the same conclusion is reached, that immigration ought to be made less easy than it is today, and that the limitations should be based upon educational and property qualifications. The workingmen desire this for their own protection, and the political economists for the sake of the country and its future, which they believe is threatened by the tide of immigration which flows with such impetus and in such volume toward our shores from the other side of the ocean.

It is not entirely a matter of ability to find employment for all who come. We do fairly well at that, and of late have had more work than we could find men for, but it is also a matter of the protection of those who are already here. The immigrant comes with little or no money and is forced by the circumstances of the situation to take the first job offered him, and generally that is a task which has been done by some one who was born here or at least preceded the new-comer, and this gives the new immigrant the advantage over the old one or the native-born, whereas it should be with the one who has had the work and not with the one who wants it to keep himself alive in the strange land. This is why the workingmen favor restriction of immigration, and it is an entirely natural condition.

SAVING ON A DOLLAR A DAY.

The man who says he never earned more than $1 a day and has saved $10,000 in 27 years is not telling the whole truth. At $1 a day he would have received $365 a year, counting Sundays as working days, and in 27 years could have earned only $9,855. There might have been added some interest to this to make up the $10,000, but there must also have been some expenses to be paid out of it. The man must have had some other means of getting a living, and it is suspected that "a thrifty and sensible wife," which he says he had, added materially to the saving of the $10,000. No man can raise a family of 13 children, support himself and wife with the ordinary necessities of life, out of an aggregate income of $9,855 and save $10,000; or if he can he has a secret of living which no one else possesses.

California is still against the Japanese, in spite of the agreement regarding the public schools. One branch of the legislature passed yesterday the alien property holding bill, which is aimed at Japanese and Chinese property owners in the state and is intended to prevent them from acquiring or owning property for a longer period than five years. One assemblyman who urged the passage of the bill said that since January 1 one third of the property transfers in Fresno had been to Japanese. The bill is expected to pass the senate, and receive the governor's signature.

Congress is more than usually prepared, in its last days of the session, for adjournment. Every appropriation bill has been agreed upon and passed, except the deficiency bill, which is made up after the others are agreed upon, to take up the loose threads, and is now before the House. The Senate's calendar is practically cleared and no night sessions will be required to complete the business before Monday noon, when the session will end.

President Roosevelt has decided not to appoint a negro as surveyor of customs at Cincinnati, "to spite Senator Foraker," and has sent to the Senate, the name of a white man for the position. He has, however, still under consideration the question of giving some well known Ohio negro an office in that state.

Congressman Birdsall of Iowa ought to be able to secure anything he desires from the President, after his declaration yesterday that "the present occupant of the White House is the only really great man who was actually born in the great city of New York."

Work on the Panama canal is progressing in spite of everything. In February approximately 650,000 cubic yards of earth was removed from the Culebra cut, and the excavation is expected to reach 1,000,000 cubic yards monthly in the immediate future.

The base ball leagues have announced their schedule and now the only thing which prevents the opening of spring is the weather. That is expected to show an improvement soon.

THE MARCH MAGAZINES.

In the acquisition of "Recreation" and the publication of that paper with "The Illustrated Outdoor News," under the title of the former, several objects were sought by the publishers. First of all, the broader title, "Recreation," has been retained, not only because of the greater age of the publication which had borne this name, but because it has been felt that it more nearly represented the sphere and purposes of the new publication than "The Illustrated Outdoor News," or any other name possibly could. The new magazine will be broader than "Recreation" has ever been, but will retain many of the characteristics and best features of this publication. Fishing, shooting, camping and the sports allied with these things will be accorded the most prominence and a greater amount of space than other subjects handled in these pages. The contents of the February Number are as follows: "Hunting Big Game in Alaskan Wilds," by John R. Bradley; "Bird and Animal Anglers—The Otter," Louis Read; "Motoring from Paris to Monte Carlo," Henry Walton; "Adventures with the Biggest Bass," Charles Frederic Holder; "The Sons of the Settlers," Ernest Russell; "Training Heavy Harness Horses for the Show Ring," C. H. Wilson; "The Amateur Golf Champion," Andrew Polton; "How the Game of Water Polo is Played," Ide B. Hanley; "Wing Shooting," Captain J. W. Dixon; "Yankee Aids to Luxurious Camping," James A. Cruikshank; "Reviewing the Dog World of 1906," James Watson; "Automobile Transportation and the American Railroad," Henry T. Clinton; "The Grayling—Its History, Habits and Capture," John H. Keene, and "Football in the South—An All-Star Eleven," Percy Whiting.

The recent sudden death of Josiah Flynt Willard lends peculiar interest to the March number of Success Magazine, in which his autobiography, "My Life—So Far," is now running as a serial, over his pen name of "Josiah Flynt." The preceding portions of this narrative have been characterized as the most daring voluntary revelation of failure and lost illusions ever penned. In the present instalment the writer tells of his study at the University of Berlin and his acquaintance with Ibsen, Tolstoi, and the great German thinkers. Under the heading, "The Third House," Gilson Gardner describes the large and active body of lobbyists in Washington, how they are recruited, how they work, the famous entertainments they give, the magnificent "Lobbyist's Heaven" erected by "Nat McKay" for the use of Congressmen, and the dinner of the $2,500 tablecloth. "Beautiful Women in Portraiture," by Grace Whitworth, is a resume of the progress of portrait painting in America, and is copiously illustrated with pictures of handsome American women, reproductions of portraits by notable painters. "Fools and Their Money," by Frank Fayant, and "The Dreyfus Affair," by Vance Thompson, are continued. Hudson Maxim, the well known scientist, contributes a new explanation of recent earthquakes, and William Mathews, a brilliant example of vigor in old age, gives directions as to "How to Live a Century." Among the good stories in the number are "Serena's Homesickness," by Ralph Henry Barbour, "The Home-Coming," by Chauncey Thomas, and "The Regeneration of Little Lewis," by James W. Foley. Verse is contributed by Wallace Irwin, Edith Minifer, Nixon Waterman, Alfred J. Waterhouse, and William J. Lampton. The cover design is by J. C. Leyendecker.

THE NORWEGIAN SKEE.

(Listener, in Boston Transcript.)

It seems it is a "she." Any Norwegian of this country who knows anything of the history of his own language and ours will tell you the correct pronounciation of the new (for us) snow-skate is "Shee"—not Skee—because "Sk" in Norway is pronounced "Sh" before all palatal vowels. For instance, the English word ship comes form the old form scip (or skip).

In Norway—according to our informant—skiing is developed to its highest perfection, the naturally mountainous conformation of the country giving the best possible opportunity for its practice. Every member of the Norwegian army is required to learn the use of skis; and the officers are often called upon to give instruction to the armies of neighboring nations. Norwegian skis are exported to almost every country which has a snow season.

PERILS AND SAFETY AFLOAT.

[Boston Transcript.]

Three disasters within two weeks, like the sinking of the Larchmont off Block Island, of the Berlin off the Hook of Holland, and of the Imperatrix off Crete, destroying more lives than were lost on the American side at the battle of Santiago or by the blowing up of the Maine, are enough to startle the world out of the complacency of its pride in the security of modern ocean travel. Not one of these ships, however, was a vessel of the best construction or the largest size. The Imperatrix was 25 years old. The Berlin was a typical Channel and North sea packet—sharp, narrow, lightly constructed for short runs at high speed. Falling far a moment out of control in a wild sea just at the narrow gateway to a port, her steel plates crumpled like paper as she struck the sands and the pierhead. A more substantial ship would have lived longer and saved more of her company.

We have few Berlins on our wintry northern coast, but many Larchmonts. These wide wooden, side-wheel craft are not without their merits, as their long lingering proves. They afford the maximum of room for passengers and quick and easy stowage for freight on the main deck. But the type is essentially unfit for deep-sea navigation, and it has never recovered from the blow in the loss of the Portland in the great blizzard of 1898. The Larchmont, though still reckoned a good and able steamboat, was built before this, and was one of the last of her tonnage from the famous wooden yards of Maine.

The fatal defect of the Larchmont, as of others of her class, is not lack of strength—for these wooden hulls are usually very strong and massive up to the lighter cabin superstructure. This defect is a lack of watertight sub-division. The Larchmont had only two or three bulkheads, though naval architects insist upon at least five as the minimum for safety, and require from seven to 12 or 16 in larger ships. One of the handicaps of wooden construction is that these bulkheads must be very thick to gain the essential strength of wood, and thus, of course, they not only add heavily to the weight, but reduce the carrying capacity of the vessel.

The elaborate sub-division which renders large modern steamers almost unsinkable is possible only with the use of steel. Moreover, size is an important factor in the problem of safety. The Larchmont was a small vessel for Long Island sound passenger service. The larger and more celebrated sound liners, with their immensely thick overhanging guards and their many athwartship steel bulkheads could sustain the impact of a scudding, deeply laden schooner like the Knowlton, remain afloat and steam unaided into port. Only a few years ago the Plymouth was brought safely into New London after a serious collision, with a wide gash in her side, but still buoyant and manageable, and with no loss of life except that occasioned by the blow itself.

In the narrow waterways of Long Island sound and the East river—always crowded, often fog-shrouded—the utmost skill of look-out and helmsman cannot always save a passenger boat from contact with the unwieldy craft of coastwise commerce. The best precaution against grave disaster is a large and powerful hull, strongly built and very thoroughly sub-divided by the steel walls which have saved many a gallant ship and sleeping and confiding passenger.

It is too much to ask of federal law that it should instantly banish from our coasts all wooden side-wheelers of the type of the Larchmont. Just as effective in the long run, though slower, is the process of natural selection which the people can enforce if they will. They can make it unprofitable and impossible for any company to run in passenger service on long, exposed routes small, obsolete, wooden vessels. Competition has usually been intense—often excessive—on the water routes between Boston and New York. Now the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad is building three large and swift steamers for the outside service, to compete with the new Harvard and Yale of the Metropolitan line. These are steel ships, scientifically designed, with unusual strength, speed and power. When they appear the junk pile ought to claim inferior craft without any admonition from the government.

And the larger and stronger ships as a rule are also better officered and better manned. There are laws enough; their enforcement by the steamboat inspection service has been wonderfully quickened since the Slocum killed a thousand holiday makers because her hose burst and her pilot lost his head. On the great sound lines smart discipline prevails, and such helter-skelter cowardice as that charged against the captain's boat on the ill-fated Larchmont is unthinkable.

HOW NATURE HELPS WASHERWOMEN.

[W. G. Fitzgerald, in Technical World Magazine.]

Nature helps to do the housework in Reykjavik, Thingvellir, Geyser and Heckla in Iceland. A common sight is to see the native women doing their washing in fast-flowing streams of almost boiling water. The tiny municipalities have erected special troughs to facilitate this; and on investigating the work closer one is amazed to find in some cases that the ice-cold river and the boiling current run side by side in the same bed.

Every Monday morning the women of Reykjavik go down to the steaming stream with bundles of clothes on their heads, and they wash in common like the women of Switzerland or rural France. At Whakatarewarewa, in New Zealand, one finds nature as an aid to the housewife in excelsis. The amount of hot mineral water is enormous; millions of gallons are bubbling and hissing and seething all around, and even if you dig a little hole in the ground with your walking stick it spouts steam and fills with boiling water in a moment or two.

The native women here go to no trouble whatever for hot baths, for the week's washing, for housecleaning, for washing up dishes, making tea, cooking all meals and even lighting fires. The following is a Maori wife's method of cooking in a natural steam hole at Ohinemutu. She has sunk a kind of box, and the viands to be cooked are placed on slats of wood at the bottom of this. Next she puts the lid on and covers the whole with sacking, and in an incredibly short while the whole dinner is most perfectly cooked as though it had the benefit of the most modern cooking appliances. Experts declare that native hams cooked in this way develop a delicacy of flavor and tenderness unknown elsewhere.

TRADE WITH DEPENDENCIES.

[New York Tribune.]

The merry jest, beloved of the "antis" a little while ago, about the paucity of our commerce with our outlying possessions, appears to have lost some of its mirth-provoking power. We used to be told, amid guffaws, that the only trade we had or ever could, would or should have with our insular possessions was that for the supply of our military garrisons there, and it was suggested, with irresistible humor, that a constant state of war should be maintained in the islands in order to require the presence of large armies, and thus to stimulate our exports thither.

It is quite different now. For example, our shipments to Porto Rico last year amounted to $22,000,000. Two years before they were only $12,000,000. Ten years before, to wit, just before we acquired possession of the island, they were only $2,100,000. An increase of nearly 1,000 per cent. in 10 years acts as a damper upon that former mirth. The fact that our sales to that island are now greater than all its trade in both directions with all the world a few years ago inspires serious thought rather than hilarious scorn.

For obvious reasons our commerce with the Philippines is not so great as with Porto Rico, one being that we have not yet free trade with the former, as with the latter. Yet our sales in those islands last year were $7,000,000, against $5,000,000 two years before and against only $180,000 10 years ago. An increase of more than 4,000 per cent in 10 years really does not impress hostile critics as quite so excruciatingly ludicrous as something else might be.

It may be observed that Porto Rico has a population of about 1,000,000, whereafore its purchases from us are $22 a head. That compares very favorably with Great Britain's purchases, which are only about $13 a head, while Germany's are only $3 a head. The Philippines have 7,000,000 population, making their purchases only $1 a head. But France's are only $1.75, Italy's $1, Austria-Hungary's 15 cents and Russia's only 5 cents.

Whether, therefore, we regard it positively or comparatively, our colonial trade is not so superlatively ridiculous as some of our keen-witted jokesmiths recently affected to imagine.

THE TEACHERS' PENSION BILL.

Measure Re-Drafted and Important Changes Made by Committee on Education.

The teachers' pension bill was re-drafted by the committee on education of the house of representatives yesterday afternoon at a meeting held upon the rising of the house. Some important changes were made in the bill, as it will be reported to the house with the recommendation of passage next week, after being printed for distribution.

The principal change is the increase in the length of time a teacher must be engaged in teaching in this state immediately preceding retirement, from the five years originally specified to 15 years.

Another new provision is the embodiment of a section carrying an appropriation of $10,000 for the purpose of carrying the provisions of the bill into effect.

Another important change is the addition of a provision barring all teachers employed after the act takes effect who shall not hold a certificate of qualification issued by authority of the State Board of Education.

Teachers in all schools supported wholly or in part by state appropriation are brought under the provisions of the bill. The minimum pension of $300 per year provided in the original bill is, however, omitted, though the maximum is left at $900.

The substitute bill, which will be recommended for passage, is as follows:

"Section 1. Any person of either sex who on the passage of this act or thereafter shall have reached the age of 60 years and who for 35 years shall have been continuously engaged in teaching as his principal occupation, and have been regularly employed as a teacher in public schools or in schools within this state supported wholly or in part by state appropriations, 25 years of which employment, including the 15 years immediately preceding retirement, shall have been in this state, may at the expiration of a school year, unless his private contract with his employer shall otherwise provide, be retired by his employer or voluntarily retire from active service, and on his formal application shall receive from the state for the remainder of his life an annual contractual salary during the last five years before retiring; but in no case shall such annual pension be more than $900; provided, however, that no such employment as teacher within this state after this act takes effect shall be included within its provisions, unless the teacher shall hold a certificate of qualification issued by or under the authority of the State Board of Education.

"Sec. 2. The State Board of Education shall make all needful regulations for issuing certificates of qualification and carrying into effect the other provisions of this act not inconsistent with the act itself, and shall examine into and determine the eligibility of each and every applicant to receive a pension under the provisions of this act.

"Sec. 3. For the purpose of carrying this act into effect the sum of $10,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated; and the state auditor is hereby directed to draw his orders on the general treasurer in favor of such persons and for such sums as shall be certified to him by the State Board of Education, according to the provisions of this act.

"Sec. 4. This act shall take effect on the first day of September, 1907."

STATE BOARD OF REGISTRATION.

Dr. Brackett Speaks in Favor of Proposed Amendment to Law Regarding Dentistry.

Dr. Charles A. Brackett of this city was one of the speakers at the hearing in Providence yesterday before the house committee on judiciary on the pending amendment to the law creating a board of registration in dentistry.

George Huddy, representing the State Board of Dentistry, said the first law regarding dentistry was passed in 1880, and from time to time there have been numerous amendments, but the laws are not at present adequate for the conviction of any person who violates the law. He called attention to the proposed amendment, and said it provides that "any person or corporation owning or carrying on a dental business, and in said business employing or permitting any person to practice dentistry in this state without being registered and obtaining a certificate as aforesaid, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor; shall be liable to indictment thereof, and upon conviction shall be fined not less than $50 nor more than $100 for each and every offence."

Dr. Brackett advocated the passage of the amendment, claiming that it is only what is necessary for the protection of the people and simply provides that only competent persons shall be allowed to practice such an important calling as that of dentistry. He called attention to the differences between dentistry as practiced today and dentistry as practiced 50 or even 25 years ago. At present the state dental board does not require anything but a demonstration that the applicant may be competent to practice. Dr. Brackett said he could not see how any fair-minded person could oppose the passage of this bill.

In answer to a question Dr. Brackett said there is no college of dentistry in this state. He said that students in the colleges of dentistry are allowed to practice upon patients, but under the direction of competent dentists. In addition to this practice, they receive courses in surgery, medicine and health and similiar auxiliary branches.

He said this bill does not aim to restrict those employed in the mechanical end of dentistry, but rather seeks to place the responsibility upon the practitioner who actually does the work upon the mouth. He did not fully coincide with the provision governing the physicians and surgeons, because the State Board of Dentistry has no light with these professions.

A TIVERTON CASE IN COURT.

The police force of Tiverton did not appear in a favorable light in the district court this morning. Levi J. Grinnell, a member of the force, was up on a charge of non-support of his wife, Honora. Mr. Nolan appeared for the wife and Mr. Levy for the husband. When the testimony was all in the court held that it was shown that defendant had told his wife to go away and that he would care for the children. There was nothing to show that the wife was in any way to blame. Defendant was found guilty and sentenced to six months in the state workhouse. The sentence seemed to be a surprise to the defendant, who did not look at things from the same point of view after the court had given a decision. It looks like a vacancy, for a time at least, in the Tiverton police force.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Miss Anna Walsh, who has been guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Robinson, has returned to her home in Newport.

A seaman gunners' class of 19 arrived here this morning on steamer Kennebec, en route from Washington to Newport.

Ice from up the bay has again collected along the east shore of the island, and the west bay at times is practically filled with ice making its way to sea.

With the annual town meeting only a little more than a month away, very little is heard of politics, and unless the "outs" are working quietly the prospects are for a quiet election.

A TWENTY-YEAR-OLD STEAM ROLLER.

A steam lawn roller has arrived from Long Island, to be overruled by G. H. Burnham, its builder. It is one which he built 20 years ago for Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt, for use on his estate, "Idle Hour," on Long Island. It has been worked every season at that place until last fall, when it seemed on the verge of a collapse, and Mr. Vanderbilt sent for Mr. Burnham to look it over. It needs repairs all right, and a new boiler. The roller has had a strenuous time on the 165 acres of lawn at the Vanderbilt place for the past 20 years and repairs are in order. This was the second lawn roller built by Mr. Burnham, the first being the smaller one built for Professor Fairman Rogers and still in use by Mr. James Cowles.

NATURE IN A MELTING MOOD.

There is something today in the melting line. The snow and ice are going pretty fast, but not fast enough to cause any special inconvenience to people by the superabundance of slush and water incident to a sudden thaw. The wind last night was northwest and it looked like rain. Today it is southeast, and balmy in sheltered places. The southerly wind has started the ice from the south end of the harbor and it is floating north instead of south, as for several days past.

The melting of the ice today is likely to result in some new smooth icy places on sidewalks this evening and a little ashes properly applied will do much to help those who walk over such sidewalks. There is altogether too much neglect about the condition of sidewalks, especially in the residential sections, and a little work with ashes would do much to make such walks passable.

TWO LOST ARTS.

We Americans are a race of skimmers. Possibly because of climatic conditions, probably because of a social system which exacts a continual straining after things we do not possess; but certain it is that the qualities of serenity and concentration may be counted among our lost arts.

We do everything lightly—just touching—just playing at things. We fly from yesterday's interests to tomorrow's; from the fad of a month ago to the national issue of today, and give to each one a passing thought—nothing more.

American women are conceded the whole world over to be the most brilliant, versatile and charming among the daughters of Eve. They are also the most nervous. If you walk down the principal shopping streets of our great cities, you can count upon the fingers of one hand the number of women you will meet in an afternoon whose eyes are serene and whose mouths are not tremulous and tired.

Yet you see the same look in all classes—the worn wage-earner, the brisk professional woman, the busy mother of families, the society leader—and simply because, whatever their rank or calling, each one of these women has crowded into her days twice as much as she can comfortably do.

"When I find myself in need of a nerve rest," said a French woman not long since, "I leave America and go back to my own country. We French people are called voluble and excitable, but we possess elements of self-control that are utterly unknown among the natives of this side of the water. Even your little babies are bundles of nerves. Their eyes are wide and inquiring, and they seem to take in everything; they begin to be busy before they can crawl. It is little wonder that you have cases of diseased nerves by the hundreds among your school children."

Unfortunately, there is no exaggeration in her charge. Our school systems, embracing as they do a vast diversity of subjects, cultivate the skimming inclination of the race. A child whose course includes 14 or 15 different branches has little chance in the world to develop nerves.

We have no time for a book or a play, for an individual or a problem that takes much of our time. Said a young girl who had been advised to give more attention to her drawing, for which she had a marked talent, "I haven't time; there are all my things that must be done."

"Your things?" questioned the older woman with whom she was talking; "what do you mean?"

"Oh! my music, and the dancing class and our book club, and the theatre club, my French lessons, my camera, my riding lessons—I am coming out this winter—and—"

"Don't," said the questioner, feebly. "Your list makes me fairly dizzy. I can well understand that you haven't time for anything else; but wouldn't it be better if you concentrated yourself a little upon the 'thing' you can do best? You wouldn't be so tired and you would really accomplish more."

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Woodland, formerly of Newport and now of Fall River, spent yesterday in town.

—Mate Maher, with a detail of 12 men, left this afternoon for Boston to bring back gunboat Hist, which is at the Boston navy yard.

—H. C. Smith of Worcester and C. S. Sawyer, N. Brown, H. F. Bates and W. J. Tully Jr., of Boston are registered at the Perry House.

—Arrivals at the United States Hotel include J. A. Sisson and F. H. Harvey of Boston, S. Bimbery and F. J. Turner of New York and G. W. Carney of Providence.

—The master workman and the recorder of Ocean Lodge, No. 7, Ancient Order of United Workmen, last night paid the death claim of the late A. W. Luther, a member of the order.

—Mr. Chester B. Tallman has returned, after an absence of three weeks. He reports that there was more ice in Fall River harbor than he remembers ever to have seen there in any previous winter.

—J. Truman Burdick has sold to Anthony M. Marolda the estate bounded east, 46 feet, on Thames street; south, 110 feet, on Brown & Howard's wharf; west, 60 feet, on land of J. Stacy Brown; south, 65 feet, on land of Albert K. Sherman; east, 22 feet, and north, 45 feet, on land of Robert S. Cash.

HAD A GOOD TIME.

A thoroughly enjoyable time was the reception last evening for the participants in the Aquidneck Minstrels, in Builders and Merchants hall. It was entirely informal, and the larger portion of the members of the company were present. It was more in the way of a happy reunion than anything else, and the general expression was that the week which has passed without rehearsals seemed to have been long and generally dull. The members, who had worked hard for weeks in preparation for the show, were frank in saying that their work had been a great pleasure and that it was their desire that the committee would map out another entertainment and begin rehearsals at once. That the committee will do this does not seem unlikely, though it cannot expect such a profit to accrue from its next effort, which may be in April. By the benefit already given the committee has raised sufficient to declare a dividend of 50 per cent, which will make a payment of 75 per cent of the entire expense incurred for Carnival Week, and this is believed to be doing pretty well.

The minstrels have placed the committee in the way of securing a fund of material for future entertainments, if it is decided to be feasible to give any. The production of the "Philly Willy" song has created a great local demand for the song, which is appreciated by the publishers, and in the future it will be possible to secure the latest publications before they are placed on sale, just as the stars of the professional stage obtain them. As to talent, new material has been found which gives promise of being heard in the future. There is quite a strong sentiment among those who have made a successful debut that it might not be a bad plan if the Aquidneck Minstrels were made a permanent organization, for the production of benefit entertainments each winter for charitable purposes, as it would be a pleasing diversion as well as a profitable one in the way of training for the participants.

Last evening one of the pleasant features was that all were acquainted with each other and all had gathered to have a good time and help others to feel happy. The evening was spent in dancing for a while, and then all interest turned to a rehearsal of the features of the show. The various turns were gone through and entered into with that heartiness which shows real enjoyment. The entire company participated in a march, which was fast and furious, full of fun and productive of pointers for stage work. Each lady was presented with a box of chocolates, and ice cream, cake and lemonade were served. It was not an expensive entertainment, to be paid for from the committee's funds, but it is doubtful if any company has had greater pleasure when an entertainment committee has endeavored to show its appreciation for the assistance rendered. Cunningham's orchestra supplied the music.

FORT ADAMS NOTES.

The new rifles arrived at Fort Adams this morning and are being issued to the troops at that post. There were 436 rifles, with bayonets and scabbards, for the four companies, as the full strength of a company of coast artillery is 109 enlisted men. These guns are the same style as those used by the Twenty-fifth infantry at Brownsville, Texas.

A RAT ON THE STAGE.

A large rat held the centre of the stage at the Opera House during the second act of the play presented by the Frankie Carpenter company last evening, and created amusement for the audience. Mr. Grady succeeded in driving it from its hiding place under a bunch of stage grass. The rat made Miss Carpenter, who saw it first, jump for a place of safety on top of a seat. The rat was speedily disposed of by some of the stage hands, who were waiting, heavily armed with brooms and other weapons, in the wings.

ANNULS AUGUST DECREE.

Royal Order Restoring Civil Marriage Formalities in Spain.

MADRID, March 1.—A royal order was issued today, annulling the decree published August 28 last, restoring the civil marriage formalities and suppressing the obligation on those desiring to get married to declare their religion. The decree of August provoked intense opposition on the part of the church authorities, who insisted that marriages thus contracted were invalid.

FLOUR SHIPMENTS NEEDED.

No Improvement in Chinese Famine Situation Reported.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—With the food supply getting short, Consul General Rodgers at Shanghai, who has assumed charge of the distribution of famine contributions, has cabled the State Department, urging that relief in the future be confined to flour shipments. He reports that there is no improvement in the famine conditions.

EDISON GOLD MOULDED RECORDS

FOR MARCH, 1907.

Of all 'round merit and variety is the Edison list for March. At the same time there are several new and attractive features. A new Edison combination, the Edison Venetian Trio, composed of violin, flute and harp, makes the first Record by these instruments ever listed in our catalogues. And a delightful Record it is, too. The Edison Military Band plays Sousa's famous "High School Cadets' March" just as Sousa plays it, and it's great. Len Spencer makes a solo Record with a hand-organ as its chief feature. The naturalness of the hand-organ would deceive any one. Steve Porter's recital of Flanagan's troubles in a restaurant is real fun. J. W. Myers has another well-rendered ballad. S. H. Dudley shows that he is still a whistler of the first rank. Hear them at

CULBERSON AND SMITH.

Two Democratic Presidential Booms Launched.

Members of Senate Glad Smoot Case is Settled—Railroads Score Victory in Mail Weighing.

(Washington correspondence of the News.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Two Democratic Presidential booms of more than ordinary interest have been launched here. The men thus brought to the front as possible candidates for the Democratic nomination next year are Senator Culberson of Texas and Governor-elect Hoke Smith of Georgia, who was Secretary of the interior under Cleveland. Mr. Smith's banner was flung to the political breeze at a dinner given in his honor by the members of the Georgia delegation in Congress, while the Texas Senator has been proposed as a winning candidate for the Democracy in numerous newspapers, some of which are published in New York. Mr. Smith's friends made it clear that he would not be a candidate against William J. Bryan, and it is known that Mr. Culberson himself is a strong supporter of the Nebraskan and believes now that Mr. Bryan will be nominated next year. The Texas Senator is a man of acknowledged ability, with an unimpeachable record of old-fashioned Democracy. He has been particularly prominent in the Senate this session. His friends say that a really excellent chance to nominate him will be brought about in the event that a conflict is precipitated between Mr. Bryan and W. R. Hearst.

Members of the Senate and many other people are heartily glad that they will hear nothing more of the Smoot case, which occupied the attention of the upper branch of Congress for nearly four years. For weeks before the Senate voted on the question of whether the Mormon Senator should be permitted to retain his seat or not it was obvious that the result would be favorable to him, so that no surprise was occasioned by the decisive vote, 42 to 28, by which the committee resolution providing for his expulsion was defeated. This means that Mr. Smoot will serve the remaining two years of his term. It is significant that, while three Democrats voted against the expulsion, eight Republicans voted for it, showing that the Senate was not divided along party lines. The Mormon Senator's friends insist that the result is wholly just and proper and that his expulsion or exclusion would have been wrong in the extreme. They insist that most of the opposition to Smoot has been based on the erroneous belief that he is a polygamist. The Senator himself reiterated in a speech in his own behalf the day before the vote was had that he has only one wife, has never had any other wife but her and that, furthermore, he believes any Mormon who has married a plural wife since the anti-polygamy manifesto should be prosecuted to the limit.

The Senate gave an exhibition of how rapidly it may work when it desires to in connection with the passage of the naval and rivers and harbors bills. These two measures carry appropriations amounting to $193,000,000 and were passed in two hours and seventeen minutes, or at the rate of about $1,333,000 per minute. Yet in the past few days the same body has wasted much valuable time in quibbling over appropriations which are infinitesimal compared with those for the support of the navy and for the improvement of inland waterways. Over in the House the Speaker has expedited business on several different occasions through methods peculiarly his own. In one instance Representative Powers of Maine called up a joint resolution validating certain legislative acts of the territory of New Mexico. The clerk commenced to read the resolution, when Uncle Joe leaned over and asked how long it was. Being told that it contained a number of printed pages, the Speaker said, "I suppose the Speaker cannot interpose an objection, but at this stage of the public business he will ask if there is objection by any one." An objection was promptly forthcoming from the Democratic side, but later the Speaker relented, and the resolution was read and agreed to.

As a result of the action of the House on the postoffice appropriation bill the antiquated system of mail weighing which has prevailed for years probably will be retained. In other words, the Postoffice Department will determine the approximate weight of the mails carried by the railroads and, based thereon, the compensations of the roads by dividing the total weight carried in the 90-day weighing period not by 90, the total number of days in that period, but by 75, the total number of days less the number of Sundays. The railroads thus get from the government at least $5,000,000 a year which they do not earn, yet their friends in the House, by taking refuge behind a technicality, blocked the efforts of Representative Murdock of Kansas and others to provide for a more equitable basis of payment.

New Senators are delighted to discover that if they ring the bells of the Senate elevators three times when they wish to go up or down the car will come to them immediately regardless of how many other persons may want to ride.

ECHO CONFERENCE AT THE Y. M. C. A.

Last evening about 40 members of the Boys' Department assembled at the Young Men's Christian Association to listen to the report of the boys' state conference recently held in Lowell, Mass. The program of the conference was divided in such a way that each boy attending might bring back something to the other boys. Those reporting were Harold P. Arnold, Ernest Brack, John Hone, J. Earl McLennan, Alexander McLellan, Charles Underwood, Stewart Teaze and Gilbert H. Burnham, Jr. Each report was well written and the boys deserve credit for giving their reports in such detail. The conference days were busy ones, and the schedule was overreached in many instances, thus cutting off the time the boys were allowed for recreation. These conferences are conducted by the boys themselves, leaders and boys' secretaries being out of it, and last evening's echo meeting had the spirit of the conference.

The Boys' Department has secured the state boys' secretary, Mr. Gibson, for its speaker next Sunday. Mr. Gibson is one who understands boys, and it is hoped that a large number will be present at this meeting. It is hard to find a man any busier than Mr. Gibson, who has been engaged by the local Young Men's Christian Association for more than two months.

BEAUTIFUL GERALDINE FARRAR.

The beauty of Miss Geraldine Farrar, the young American prima donna, is emphasized by the brilliancy of some of her stage costumes. One of these which serves to enhance her charms exceptionally well is shown in the illustration. It is worn in "Aida." On the recent occasion of her farewell performance at the Royal Opera House in Berlin, preparatory to her departure for New York, Miss Farrar received an ovation which testified to the esteem in which she is held by German opera goers.

GRAIN RUINED BY WATER.

Wooden Elevator in Nashua, N. H., Badly Damaged by Fire.

NASHUA, N. H., March 1.—Damage amounting to about $15,000 was caused by water to a large amount of grain stored in the large three-story wooden grain elevator of O. B. Tilton in this city during a fire early today. The flames started in the basement, and became so threatening that the greater part of the city fire department was called to the scene. The blaze was subdued, after causing a loss of about $5,000, but the heavy stock of grain was practically ruined by the deluge of water. There is a partial insurance. The cause of the fire was not known.

BOUGHT SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN.

Death of Orson D. Munn, Head of Publishers' Firm of That Name.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Orson D. Munn, head of Munn & Co., publishers of the Scientific American, died here late last night in his eighty-third year. Mr. Munn was born in Monson, Mass., June 11, 1824. At the age of 22 he and Alfred E. Beach, who had been a schoolmate, bought the Scientific American, which had been recently founded. Their joint efforts made it the first popular scientific journal in the United States. Numerous requests to the publishers concerning procurement of patent letters for new inventions, led to the company establishing a patent agency, which for many years had practically a monopoly of that class of business, owing to its being a pioneer. It is estimated that more than 100,000 applications for patents were made through the house.

ASSOCIATION TEAMS DEFEATS SOLDIERS.

At the Young Men's Christian Association gymnasium last evening the Association basket ball team defeated the Seventy-eighth Company, coast artillery, team from Fort Adams by a score of 29 to 16. In the first half the Association team played Durfee at centre, and in the second that player retired, Dillon taking his place and McGee going in at right forward in place of Dillon. In the second half Rudolph of the soldiers' team hurt his ankle and Murray took his place at centre. The Association generally outplayed the soldiers, who put up a good passing game, but were not able to connect with the baskets. Rutledge, Dillon and Metlee did the scoring and Sullivan and McEnaney surpassed for the soldiers. In the first half the score was 13 to 4 in favor in the Association team, and in the second half 26 to 12. The summary is as follows:

Young Men's Christian Association.	Seventy-eighth Company
Dillon, McGee, r. f.	l. b., Wallace
Walker, l. f.	r. b., Sullivan
Durfee, Dillon, c.	c., Rudolph, Murray
Rutledge, r. b.	l. f., McEnaney
Barker, l. b.	r. f., Walker

Score—Young Men's Christian Association 59, Seventy-eighth Company 16. Goals—Dillon 8, Metlee 4, Durfee, Rutledge 6; Wallace, Sullivan 4, McEnaney 2, Walker. Goal from foul—Rutledge. Referee—Garniss, D. Sullivan.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Mrs. E. G. Hartshorn has gone to Providence.

—A daughter was born last Saturday in New York to Mr. and Mrs. August Belmont, Jr.

—Mr. William H. Schmidt is here from New York for two weeks and is at his house on Dresser street.

—Mr. Simon Koschny has returned from a two months' trip to the West Indies, greatly benefiting his health.

—Miss Pauline LeRoy French is now visiting Mrs. W. N. Ellis and her sister, Miss Neill, at "Longacre."

—Miss Gladys Vanderbilt will leave New York in a few days for Aiken, to be with her sister, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

—The ice up the bay having given way to the wind and tide, the Providence Line ferry to Bristol resumed business at 11 o'clock today. Steamer Saganore was unable to reach her dock in Bristol Wednesday because of the thickness of the ice, and the line has been closed more or less all the week, but now it is expected that no further trouble will be had from the ice embargo.

—Mr. Philip Schneider has returned from Stapleton, S. I., where he has been spending several weeks.

—Several boys were seen playing marbles in the snow a few days ago. Being real boys, they could not wait for the proper season.

—Rev. C. E. Bennett of St. Thomas Church, Greenville, R. I., will preach at the special Friday evening Lenten service at Emmanuel this evening.

—Yesterday's announcement of Quarterly Conference changes should have assigned Tuesday evening, March 5, and not Thursday evening, to the Portsmouth Methodist Episcopal Church.

—Treasurer John P. Peckham of Cornnet Council, Royal Arcanum, yesterday paid to Mrs. Lillie Gibbs Boone, widow of William H. Boone, the $3,000 benefit certificate which the deceased had in the order.

—Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., who was booked to sail for Europe Tuesday, postponed her departure and celebrated her birthday yesterday at her house in New York, the alterations of which have now been completed.

—Hon. Henry White, the retiring American ambassador at Rome, paid farewell visits yesterday to Senor Giolitti, premier, and to the presidents of the Senate and the chamber of deputies, who all expressed friendly feelings for the United States. Queen Margherita gave a dinner last evening in honor of Mr. White. Her Majesty regretted the necessary absence of Mrs. White.

—Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish entertained a large party at luncheon yesterday at her home in New York. Among her guests were Mrs. Moses Taylor Campbell, Mrs. Elbridge T. Gerry, Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. George J. Gould, Mrs. A. Cass Canfield, Mrs. James W. Gerard, Jr., Mrs. Francis K. Pendleton, Mrs. Richard Gambrill, Mrs. Henry Clews and Mrs. Karrick Riggs.

The Secret of Happiness GOOD HEALTH.

When the digestion is not normal, the balance of the body is not given the blood and strength necessary to the proper upkeep of the system. Among the many symptoms you will notice all the so-called "heart troubles," as fluttering palpitating, a feeling of suffocation. The blood does not circulate freely and you are pale, or you feel flushed by the extreme efforts made by the system to throw off the ailment. Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets and Laxeconfits are the combination of remedies that will relieve you by removing the root of all the troubles, Dyspepsia.

Mrs. W. J. Austin of 936 Smithfield Ave., Lincoln, R. I., says:

"After a few weeks trial, I can rapidly state that Dr. Richards' Dyspepsia Tablets have proved of great benefit to me. I like them very much indeed, for they have done more for me than other medicines of a like kind and it is with pleasure I give this statement for publication as a recommendation for your sterling remedy."

For sale by all druggists. Better say "Richards" twice. Price 50 cents per bottle. Made by Dr. Richards Dyspepsia Tablet Association, 53 Worth St., New York.

ST. CROIX RIVER ICE-LOCKED.

Much Suffering From the Scarcity of Coal and Wood.

CALAIS, Me., March 1.—With the most severe cold wave of the winter lasting through this week, the St. Croix river is closed to navigation, and there has been much suffering among the inhabitants, owing to the lack of fuel. The St. Croix was the last river in Maine to become ice-locked. From St. Stephen shore to Calais and extending almost to the island of St. Croix extends an unbroken field of ice. Steamer Henry P. Eaton and tug Wellman tried early in the week to break up the field, but made little progress.

What little coal was in stock is now practically exhausted. Wood which has heretofore been abundant is scarce. The farmers who have hauled wood to the towns along the river banks in previous years have found it more profitable in supplying lath and box wood to manufacturers, and many householders now have no fuel supply of any kind.

WINTER TOO SEVERE FOR DEER.

Large Number of Carcasses Reported by Maine Woodsmen.

BANGOR, Me., March 1.—A large number of carcasses of deer are reported by returning woodsmen, indicating that the present winter has been unusually severe for the game. Most of the bodies were those of young and old animals which have the least vitality. Generally the deer herd in large numbers during the winter, treading down the snow over a large extent of woodland, in order to get at the moss and tender shoots. Here also they huddle together for warmth, but on account of the extreme cold and the unusual amount of snow only the hardiest of the animals have survived.

FOR STOMACH SUFFERERS.

Don't Use Any Remedy That Keeps Its Formula a Secret.

People Who Are Troubled With Stomach Weakness Cannot Afford to Use Any Remedy Unless They Know What It Contains.

Mi-o-na is not a mere digestive giving only temporary relief, but a specific for all disorders of the digestive organs, and so effects a permanent cure for stomach troubles.

Your physician will tell you that nothing is better than a combination of chemically pure bismuth subgallate to allay any inflammation of the stomach and bowels; cerium oxalate, to strengthen the stomach nerves; sodium bi-carbonate, which neutralizes the poisonous acids that are present in stomach troubles; and nux vomica, which will restore vigor to the digestive organs and tone the whole nervous system.

This combination is found only in Mi-o-na stomach tablets, and if so rarely fails to strengthen the digestive system and cure all forms of stomach disorders, that Wright & Hay sell the remedy under a guarantee to refund the money unless it cures.

If you suffer from indigestion, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, headaches, pains in the back and side, emaciation, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness, or any of the other symptoms of stomach troubles, begin the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets at once. Wright & Hay sells them in 50c. boxes with a guarantee to refund money unless they cure.

Weak Kidneys

Weak Kidneys, surely point to weak kidney Nerves. The Kidneys, like the Heart, and the Stomach, find their weakness, not in the organ itself, but in the nerves that control and guide and strengthen them. Dr. Shoop's Restorative is a medicine specifically prepared to reach these controlling nerves. To doctor the Kidneys alone, is futile. It is a waste of time, and of money as well.

If your back aches or is weak, if the urine scalds, or is dark and strong, if you have symptoms of Brights or other distressing or dangerous kidney disease, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative a month—Tablets or Liquid—and see what it can and will do for you. Druggist recommend and sell

THE HEAVENS IN MARCH.

Constellations of Winter Stars Low in the West.

Two Remarkable Variable Stars—Cause Zodiacal Light and the Counter-Glow Obscure.

[Professor Eric Doolittle.]

The sun in his slow, eastward journey around the sky is drawing ever nearer to the brilliant winter stars. Already he has so nearly overtaken the magnificent Taurus and Orion that these constellations are low in the west in the early evening, while the beautiful Dog-stars have passed the meridian and are just beginning to move downward out of the evening sky. The one bright spring group Leo, or the Sickle, with the brilliant King star Regulus, is high up in the south, while east of this Virgo, the first of the faint summer constellations, is just beginning to appear.

Above Leo the Great Dipper fills up almost the whole of the northeastern sky. Below this is seen Bootes, who with upraised arm is driving the Bear before him. Below Leo there is the Watersnake which just emerged from the ground three months ago and of which even now but little more than half is visible. Not until next May will the whole of this very long constellation be seen in the early evening.

The bright stars in the southwest from the eighth to the sixth magnitude and occupies 424 days in the change. It will attain its greatest brightness March 2, and it is remarkable that when brightest the star is least red. At present it is only of an orange color, but if the observer will examine it from time to time as it fades away he will see it change to the deepest red.

These stars are suns, surrounded by dense metallic vapors. For some cause, as yet unexplained, there is at regular intervals so violent an agitation in the central sun that its eruptions of luminous gases burst through the heavy envelope. Then the star flashes out with unusual brilliancy, only to die slowly away again.

This is the best time of the year for observing that strange phenomenon known as the Zodiacal Light. The night must be very clear and the moon absent, when just before the sunset glow has faded from the sky, it will be seen as a faint pyramid of light whose base rests on the western horizon where the sun has set, and which extends up along the ecliptic almost to the Pleiades. Its light is nearly as intense as that of the Milky Way, but of far more uniform radiance. It is brightest nearest the sun and fades gradually away as we approach the blunted apex of the pyramid, until it becomes too faint to be seen. Peculiar flashes resembling the aurora have been seen in it when the air was unusually clear. Its base is sometimes of a reddish color and sometimes it is so bright as to efface the fainter stars, though usually the stars appear to shine through it with undiminished brilliancy.

It is not yet surely known what the cause of this strange light is. It is certain that the light surrounds the sun, because its base is always at the sun and it is carried continually eastward as the sun advances among the stars. It is known also that it shines by reflected sunlight. It is therefore believed that the Zodiacal Light is sunlight reflected from a great swarm of meteoric particles which surround the sun in a lens-shaped figure, stretching out at least as far as the orbit of the earth. The portion below the line A B, Fig. 3, cannot now be seen in the early evening. This portion, however, rises before the sun and may be seen in the early morning. In mid-summer at about midnight the apices of both pyramids have been seen at once, one in the west and the other in the east.

If the cause of the Zodiacal Light is not positively known, that of the counter-glow is far more obscure. This is a faint little patch of light which may always be seen in the sky on a dark night exactly opposite the sun. During this month it will move along the ecliptic from the constellations Leo to Virgo. It is very remarkable that it changes its form from month to month. In January it is small and elongated, in February and March very large and round, etc., while in June and December it has reached the Milky Way and is rendered invisible by the brightness of the stars which surround it.

Some have thought its source is to be looked for in the shining of millions of little bodies, revolving about the sun outside the orbit of Mars, each of which shines just as a little full moon when opposite the sun. Others believe it due to sunlight which is bent downward as it passes through the air about the earth and so lights up the fine meteoric dust with which space is supposed to be filled. While still others believe it to be a regular tail of the earth formed of the lighter gases, which are constantly being repelled by the sun. Whatever its cause may be, there is scarcely any study for observers without telescopes which promises such valuable results at present as systematic observations of the counter-glow.

Mercury is further from the sun March 1, and may be seen for a few days before and after that time. It shines out low down in the west from 30 minutes to an hour after sunset. Jupiter, the most brilliant object in the heavens, is moving slowly eastward in the constellation Gemini. The position of Neptune is shown on Fig. 1. The other planets are [illegible] present a fine contrast in color. Even the untrained eye can see a decided difference between the bluish white color of Sirius and Rigel (B) and the orange red star at A. The smaller dog-star at B is neither steely white nor orange, but of a yellowish tinge. When the light from Sirius is analyzed it is found that this star, which is more brilliant than our sun, is surrounded by an immense atmosphere of hydrogen gas. The yellowish stars like Procyon are more nearly in the HIGH PRICE FOR BAR SILVER.

Efforts of All the Miners Insufficient to Maintain the World's Production.

Present prices for bar silver are higher than at any previous time in 13 years since 1893, when the Sherman silver purchase law was repealed. Manufacturers protest that not until the last moment was the advance in the price of silverware made, and victims who suffer from it will believe them, while regarding with apprehension the statement of some in the trade that still higher prices are in prospect, not only because of the higher cost of bar silver, but also of other metals used in the manufacture of plated ware.

Not all the efforts of all the miners delving in all the mines of the earth have been sufficient to maintain the world's production of silver. The silver output, which in 1901 was 173,611,283 ounces, of which 55,200,000 ounces were produced in the United States, dropped to 168,990,238 ounces in 1904, the last year for which complete statistics are available.

On the other hand, there has been an enormously increased output of gold, which has had the effect of advancing prices of all other commodities, until some economists foresee a menace to the business interests of the country, the exact opposite of that which agitators prophesied 10 years ago, on account of the scarcity of the yellow metal. In the case of silver, this condition has been further augmented by the fact that the comparative cheapness of silver, relative to its coinage value, has greatly stimulated the manufacture of silverware, while unprecedented activity in business has set almost every nation of the world to buying vast quantities of silver for subsidiary currency.

France and the other European countries have been heavy purchasers of silver for coinage, and there has been a great increase in the use of silver in Manchuria, India, China and the East, which, with the development of those countries, seems certain still further to increase. China is soon to adopt a new financial system, which is separate for each province. Of this system silver will be the circulating medium, if not the actual base, and there will be a further call for large supplies. About one half of the total supply of silver is now absorbed by India and 34 per cent is consumed in the arts, leaving only about 25,000,000 ounces to meet the monetary demands of the rest of the world. Last year the total value of silver sent to India from London amounted to 7,500,000 pounds, but up to September 27 of this year it had reached nearly 12,500,000 pounds.

Recently the United States treasury has been making purchases three times a week, instead of once a week, as formerly, and Mexico has within a short time concluded arrangements with this government whereby United States mints are to turn out, at a reduced standard of fineness, as many silver dollars as possible,—the mint facilities of Mexico being limited—for the reason that the increasing price of the metal has reached the point where a Mexican dollar is worth more as bullion than as currency, and Mexico, consequently, finds her silver slipping away in exports to other countries.

One by one the nations of the earth are gravitating to a gold standard, but the progressive demonetization of silver seems to be followed by an increased business activity, which demands greater rather than less supplies of silver.

MOUNTAINS OF IRON.

The famous Erzberg is about 90 miles southwest of Vienna, in the Austrian duchy of Styria. It is in the centre of the great iron mining region of Austria, and around it smoke many blast furnaces, all of them fed by the ore which this mountain supplies, for the Erzberg is a mass of solid iron ore over 5,000 feet in height. The ore is extremely rich and yields from 35 to 45 per cent of pure iron.

There are a few similar masses of iron ore in the world, but not many. Near the city of Durango, in Mexico, is a small mountain of ore, and near the east coast of Queensland is a small island in the Duke group that is all iron ore, and it is estimated that it will yield a total of 2,250,000 tons.

Miners are cutting the ore out of the Erzberg at the rate of 6,600,000 pounds a year, and it is estimated that at this rate it will take them 1,000 years longer to dig the mountain entirely away. If this estimate is correct, there still remains in the Erzberg 3,300,000 tons of ore.

In Lapland, along the line of the Arctic railroad, between Gellivare and the Atlantic railway, is another mountain of iron ore, but it is smaller than the Erzberg, which is the largest solid mass of iron ore rising in the form of a mountain that has yet been discovered. For centuries more or less mining has been carried on along this mountain slope, but it is only within 50 or 60 years that the work has been regularly prosecuted on a large scale. From 2,000 to 3,000 miners dig these terraces on the mountainside during the summer months, but for three months in winter work in the open air is entirely suspended, as the winds and snowstorms make the labor too severe and expensive, but the work still goes on in winter, for about 1,000 to 1,500 men are then engaged in underground mining along the sides of the mountain, where they have dug deep into the solid ore.

Thus the mountain is being gradually reduced by lowering its heights and by digging into its heart, and legions of men will keep at the work till the mountain has been wiped off the surface of the earth and the vast quantities of iron it contained have been scattered far and wide in various forms of manufacture.

Conspiracy Indictments Against Providence Coal Firms.

Candidates for the Vacant Railroad Commissionership—Lieutenant Woodworth Resigns.

Indictments charging unlawful combination, confederation and conspiracy to regulate and fix the price of coal in Providence were found yesterday afternoon before Judge Mumford of the superior court by the special grand jury, against four corporations and one individual, and indictments, in addition, characterizing the defendants as being "evilly disposed," are brought against four individuals. The court ordered that the corporations and individuals shal speedily be brought in to plead to the indictments, and the defendants are expected to plead next Thursday. The corporations and individual against whom the first indictment is found are the Eastern Coal Company, John R. White & Son, Incorporated; the Doe & Little Company, Curran & Burton, Incorporated, and Harry C. Clark, who represents the Providence Coal Company, all coal dealers of Providence. Those against whom the second indictment is found are George E. Warren of Boston, Mass., of the Eastern Coal Company; Smiuth P. Burton of Brookline, Mass., president of Curran & Burton, and James A. Kinghorn and Merwin White of Providence, of the John R. White Company.

The vacancy in the office of railroad commissioner, caused by the death of Edward L. Freeman, has already started a canvass for the position, both among Democrats who are anxious that Governor Higgins should appoint them, and among Republicans who would be pleased to receive the office and the salary which goes with it, at the hands of the Senate. There is believed to be a strong probability that Governor Higgins would prefer to reappoint William Pendergast of Burrillville, whose term expires in January previous to the expiration of the term of the office, when the senate refused to take his appointment from the table. An opponent for the honor of the appointment at the hands of the governor has appeared upon the field, however, in the person of Representative Rattey of Central Falls, who has announced himself as a candidate, and whose desires in the matter have been communicated to the governor. It is generally expected that when the matter comes up in the Senate that body will exercise its right, and after allowing the governor's appointment to lie on the table a sufficient length of time will proceed to choose its own candidate for this office. So far the Republicans have not given much consideration to the election of a successor to Mr. Freeman. The name of Joseph W. Freeman has been mentioned, and it is argued in his favor that his services as deputy commissioner have qualified him by experience for the place. Mr. Freeman is the present mayor of Central Falls and opposition to him may develop on that score. Representative Atchison of North Smithfield is being pushed by his friends for the place. Mr. Atchison was a candidate for deputy commissioner under Mr. Freeman, who it is understood did not appoint a deputy after his recent re-election as commissioner. He is a station agent for the railroad company in North Smithfield and also a telegrapher of experience, and his friends in the house and senate consider him qualified for the position of commissioner. Senator William L. Frost of Tiverton and Senator Henry F. Anthony of East Providence, both railroad men, are among those whose names have been mentioned in connection with the matter.

First Lieutenant Clarence F. Woodworth of the Machine Gun Battery, who was recently acquitted by a court-martial on the charge of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, tendered his resignation as an officer of the state militia to Governor Higgins Wednesday. The Governor accepted the resignation yesterday, considerably less than 24 hours after it had been placed in the hands of Captain Bixby. Such an expeditious course in accepting the resignation of an commissioned officer of the state militia has been seldom taken, if ever, in Rhode Island. Charges were preferred against the lieutenant by Captain Bixby of the Machine Gun Battery March 10, last. The charges set forth that Lieutenant Woodworth had behaved in a manner unworthy of an officer and a gentleman to Colonel Frye of the First Massachusetts regiment of heavy artillery, now adjutant general of that state. The alleged acts consisted of criticising the colonel on his conduct of the New England Rifle Association matches at Wakefield in the summer of 1905, and in using disrespectful language to him, his superior officer. Another matter named in the charges was the disposition of some grain left over from the camp of 1906, it being claimed that Lieutenant Woodworth failed to account for the grain after the close of camp. May 15 Governor Utter revoked his commission for the good of the service and May 17 Lieutenant Woodworth demanded a court-martial.

The seizure by the customs officials of Providence of a fifteenth century masterpiece in oil of untold value, on suspicion that an Italian had attempted to smuggle it into this country without paying adequate duty, was revealed yesterday afternoon, when condemnation proceedings were instituted by District Attorney Charles A. Wilson in the United States district court. The painting is in the form of 12 large cases of wood panels, and is an elaborate work of art, which supposedly constituted a priceless ceiling decoration in some ancient Italian villa. The painting, assembled, measures 20 by 40 feet in area, and bears the stamp of age and the unmistakable marks of having been executed by one of the old masters. The information from New York that the firm of McKim, Mead & White has brought suit against an importing house for $11,000 damages, on account of the failure to deliver a large piece of art work to be used in the decoration of a residence, is believed to furnish the nucleus of a clue to the persons for whom the valuable shipment is intended. The fact that the 12 large packing cases were brought to Providence invoiced at about one third their appraised value indicates to Collector Gardiner, who made the seizure, that an attempt at fraud upon the government was made and that Providence was selected as a more likely port for the scheme to succeed than either New York or Boston, where shipments of this class are more often received.

Postmaster John W. Cass of Woonsocket has received information that the United States Senate has concurred in the House appropriation for $50,000 additional for a new postoffice building in Woonsocket. The erection of a fine structure is now assured. Previous to this week the amount available was but $50,000, being an addition of $75,000 to the $15,000 originally appropriated for the site. The additional appropriation of $20,000 gives the government $110,000 with which to buy a site and erect a federal building which will be an ornament to the city. The present plan is to spend $35,000 for a site and the remaining $75,000 for the building. The addition of $20,000 was obtained through the efforts of Postmaster Cass, with the substantial aid of the Congressmen from Rhode Island. With the amount of money now on hand the government can purchase the site which includes the Methodist church and the estates on both sides of it and erect thereon the $75,000 building, provided the city extends Cato street through Clinton street, which is very probable. The Methodists were planning to build their new church home on the Clinton schoolhouse lot.

PORTSMOUTH.

(Regular correspondence of the News.)

There will be Lenten services this evening at St. Mary's at 7:30, and tomorrow at 4 p. m.

Mr. D. Frank Hall and Mrs. Hall are entertaining Mrs. R. D. Hall and Miss Ruth Hall during the absence of Mrs. Hannah Sisson in Boston.

Master Charlie Anthony is quite ill.

Mrs. Clara E. Dennis, who has been confined at home by illness since December 14, was with the consent of her physician allowed to take a trolley ride to and from Newport Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Wyatt were guests Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bigalke of Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. George White, who have been living on Vernon avenue in Newport, moved to Portsmouth early this week.

Miss Carrie D. Anthony has returned from a visit to Miss Mary E. Almy of Fall River.

A steamer load of fertilizer having arrived in Newport, the farmers are taking advantage of the good wheeling and are hauling it out as rapid y as possible.

Mrs. Albert Sisson is confined to bed by severe illness.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Altes of Seattle are visiting relatives in Portsmouth.

The Olinhant Reading Club will meet with Mrs. Elizabeth H. Simmons Friday afternoon; subject, "Famous Women Workers."

Mrs. Hannah Lawton Colt, widow of Captain George T. Easterbrooks, who died recently in Portland, Ore., in her ninetieth year, was a native of Portsmouth. She had lived in Bristol for many years since her early childhood and there married Captain Easterbrooks. She afterwards lived in Pacific county, Washington, until the death of her husband in 1893, since which time she had made her home with her son, Dr. George W. Easterbrooks, in Portland.

IF ROYALTY HAD TO WORK.

Nearly all the royalties of Europe could, if driven to it, earn their own living. The Queen of Roumania, Carmen Sylva, makes an income from her books that many authors cannot equal. The Emperor of Russia has a sweet and well-trained tenor voice. Had he not been of royal blood he would undoubtedly have succeeded in grand opera. The Queen of Italy is a linguist of unusual talent. Conversing fluently and correctly in eight languages, she could get at any time a position in a high school.

The King of England is one of the best judges of wines and cigars in the world. As a wine or tobacco expert or as a dealer in these luxuries he would soon have grown rich. The Queen of Portugal has a medical degree and could easily earn her living as a doctor. The German emperor, as everybody knows, could make a good living as a poet, a musician, an artist, a shipbuilder, a pottery manufacturer, a horse dealer, an actor, a bookbinder, a clergyman, a tailor, a sculptor, a barber, a farmer or a dentist.

THE NEEDS OF POINT JUDITH.

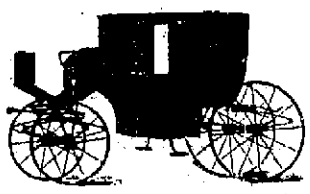

The horrible disaster of the Larchmont, by which at least 150 lives were sacrificed only a few miles from Point Judith, should inspire Congress to increase the appropriation of $156,000 for work on the Point Judith harbor of refuge sufficiently at least to provide a safe and practical landing place for a first-class motor lifeboat in all weathers. Had such conditions existed last Monday night when the Larchmont and schooner that collided with her sank, it would have been hardly possible for such a lifeboat to have reached the scene of the disaster in time to succor any one, owing to the intense cold and the almost sudden drowning of nearly all on board. But had the weather been milder, so that these poor souls could have lived on rafts, boats and wreckage, a good lifeboat could have rendered great service.

There will be collisions and resultant disasters on outside water routes as long as vessels navigate, but they are less in proportion to the increasing number of steamers and sail vessels afloat than they ever were, in consequence of the safeguards hedged around them by government regulations as to officers and vessels through Congressional action. Now if that body will be still more just to the public through a greater liberality in appropriations necessary for coast improvements, such as that at Point Judith, it will be doing a humane act as well as its duty to the community at large.

At a secret meeting of freight agents and rate men, held in the offices of the Pennsylvania railroad in Pittsburg within the last 48 hours, it was agreed that rates on moving iron and steel products should be increased about 10 per cent, thereby increasing the revenues of the Pittsburg offices about $25,000,000 yearly.

People who are clean inside will look like it and act it. They will work with energy, think clearly, act clearly, and have healthy thoughts. Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. It makes clean people. 35 cents, Tea or Tablets. Wright and Hay, 22 Washington Square.

Embroideries and the Tunic Style.

In models recently received from Paris, where the so-called dull season oftentimes produces the most charming and effective novelties, there is evident a strong tendency to return to the two-piece skirt and the tunic style. Good news this for the tall and slender woman, but for her petite sister who wishes to make the most of her inches the tunic mode will not prove welcome.

In the gown that is pictured the grape design is done in the natural green shades that identify the Malaga grape, the fruit being fashioned from chiffon well padded of a semblance of the natural grape, while the vine and leaves are done in embroidery stitches. The sleeve is merely a drapery of the embroidered chiffon, the bodice plain and close fitting, while the tunic, or top part of the skirt is fitted with dart-shaped tucks over the hips. The underskirt is merely a frothy mass of plisse chiffon ruffles, each edged with an effective ruching, the tunic top falling in wide points all around.

BIRD MIGRATIONS.

Some Do Not Travel by Day—The Night Time Has Its Special Dangers, Too.

The birds that are surest and swiftest of wing, as the swallows, do not hesitate to travel by day. Those less strong of wing and of conspicuous plumage dare not risk the daylight.

But the night migrations have their special dangers, too. The gas and electric lights of cities and towns, with the network of wires in their vicinity, to say nothing of church spires and light houses, are the cause of many bird disasters during migration time.

These same lights prove a friend to many of our night-foraging birds during the insect season, when a good meal is always easily secured in their vicinity.

Many screech owls have been seen around these lights in town the present summer. Their whereabouts during the day was always easily traced by the excitement of the birds in that locality.

One morning we were awakened by a clamor among our birds, the special cause of trouble seeming to center in two large maple trees. This continued all day, and do the best we could nothing could be discovered to warrant such a tumult. The mystery was explained when dusk came on and a number of screech owls began making investigations in our bird houses.

We captured one of the owls and kept it long enough to observe some interesting things, chief of which was the double set of lids with which nature has provided these particular birds. The under lids look as if they might have been made from mica and are edged with a little dark line. These serve to subdue the strong light of day which is so trying to owl eyesight, the outer lid closes only in sleep.

BABY'S FACE IN TERRIBLE STATE

Awful Humor Was Eating Away Face and Ears—Body Mass of Sores—Three Doctors Tried to Help Little Sufferer But She Grew Worse—After Spending Many Dollars On Doctors and Medicine

CUTICURA CURES IN TWO WEEKS AT COST OF 75c.

"I feel it my duty to parents of other poor suffering babies to tell you what Cuticura has done for my little daughter. She broke out all over her body with a humor, and we used everything recommended, but without results. I called in three doctors, they all claimed they could help her, but she continued to grow worse. Her body was a mass of sores, and her little face was being eaten away. Her ears looked as if they would drop off. Neighbors advised me to get Cuticura Soap and Ointment, and before I had used half of the cake of Soap and box of Ointment the sores had all healed, and my little one's face and body were as clear as a new-born babe's. I would not be without it again if it cost five dollars, instead of seventy-five cents, which is all it cost us to cure our baby, after spending many dollars on doctors and medicines without any benefit whatever. Mrs. George J. Steese, 701 Coburn St., Akron, Ohio, Aug. '30, 1905."

What a Marvel it would have been to Abraham Lincoln, splitter of rails.

Mr. Farmer: Your progressiveness is keeping you in close touch with improvements in farm machinery, in dairy methods, and with all the scientific facts that bring about the greatest possible agricultural production.

You are also informing yourself about fence. We know you are.

First—there was the stone fence of medieval history.
Second—pioneer America converted its timber into rails.
Third—somebody found a way to weave wire and slats.
Fourth—along came barb wire, with its marvelous sale.
Fifth—machines were invented to twist or clamp one wire around another: the woven wire fence.

But, most important of all, electricity now welds the wires at the joint, making no longer necessary these wraps and clamps. Stay and strand, wizard-like, become one.

The greatest step forward in fence building is thus accomplished at a single, master stroke.

Of course, you are not using anything else. Surely you are familiarizing yourself with this remarkable improvement, to be found only in "Pittsburgh Perfect."

Order now for prompt spring delivery.

THAW VICTIM OF AN ACUTE ATTACK,

no light on the mental condition of the writer, but exhibit 1, the last of the defendant's letters, showed mental unsoundness.

"Now," said Mr. Jerome, "please answer me plainly, was the writer of these letters sane or insane?"

"When writing some he was insane. How long the insanity lasted I am unable to tell."

"These letters were written in 1903," said Mr. Jerome.

"Now tell me what form of insanity Thaw was suffering from at the time of his marriage, April 4, 1905?"

"If that was the same time he executed the will and codicil, I would say he was suffering a temporary attack, due to strain, stress or anxiety, or insanity or adolescence."

"Remember," continued the alienist, "I had not seen him at that time. I had not seen him for nearly a year afterward. I base my opinion on observations since that time and the documents executed at that time."

Mr. Jerome now came directly to the issue in the case and asked "On the night that he killed Stanford White was the defendant sane or insane?"

"I am firmly of the opinion that he was insane."

Dr. Evans answered quickly and with directness for almost the first time during his cross-examination.

"What form of insanity was it?" continued Mr. Jerome.

"It was an explosive outbreak of adolescent insanity."

"Now, then, he probably was insane when he wrote those letters in 1903?"

"As a matter of general opinion he was deranged—a degree of adolescent insanity perhaps."

"Is the insanity of adolescence acute or chronic?"

"There are acute outbreaks of adolescent insanity and I have known many cases to clear up over night. There was a sudden outbreak in one case I have in mind at night and the next morning the patient was perfectly lucid."

"Do you consider insanity which lasts from 1903 to 1906 acute or chronic?"

"If the insanity continued it would be chronic, but if there were lucid intervals it could not be so considered."

Witness said he would not necessarily keep such a man under treatment.

"If a man was crazy, but had lucid intervals for three years would you call it acute or chronic?"

"If he had lucid intervals I would not call it chronic."

"Persons suffering from paranoia often remain in a healthy physical condition, do they not?"

"Yes."

Witness said he had treated many cases of paranoia.

"Does a person suffering from paranoia have many lucid intervals?"

"Yes, I have seen many of them and have seen them recover."

"Is it not true that many paranoics disclose no indication of insanity until you get on the subject of their particular delusion?"

"Yes."

"Was this defendant suffering from acute or chronic adolescent insanity when he shot and killed Stanford White?"

"At the time of the shooting, there was an acute outbreak," replied Dr. Evans.

"Was it acute or chronic adolescent insanity from which he suffered?"

"I am confident that there had been other outbreaks. I believe that when he shot and killed White it was an acute attack and I believe a recurrent attack."

"Is there such a difference as acute and chronic adolescent insanity?" asked Mr. Jerome as he picked up a medical work from his desk and opened it at a marked page.

"There has been such a classification," said Dr. Evans, "and," he added, "I can picture a case which might be called chronic during the period of one's adolescence—that is from 10 to 40 years."

"Was it acute or chronic adolescent insanity from which this defendant suffered at the time he killed Stanford White?"

Mr. Jerome seemed determined to pin the witness down.

"The outbreaks wer acute," he replied.

"Of course they were," interposed Mr. Jerome. "Did you ever know the outbreak of any lunatic to be other than acute?"

Dr. Evans hesitated, and then declared: "No."

Dr. Evans declared all the evidence in the case was of outbreaks, and there was nothing to show a chronic condition.

"How many outbreaks do you think this defendant has had?" asked Mr. Jerome.

T 10

The witness recited the events of writing the letters in 1903, the making of the will in 1905 and the tragedy of 1906.

"In your opinion, then, there were three outbreaks of adolescent insanity?"

"Three that I know of," said Dr. Evans. "There may have been others."

Mr. Jerome said he would give the doctor more exhibits to examine during the luncheon recess. The witness demurred to this.

"I won't have time to get my lunch," he complained.

Finally he said he would do the best he could, and recess was ordered.

BUSINESS IN THE SENATE.

Agricultural Bill Sent Back to Conference on the Item.

WASHINGTON, March 1.—The Senate today agreed to the resolution reported yesterday by Senator Aldrich from the finance committee, authorizing that committee to make an investigation of internal revenue, customs currency and coinage matters during the recess or sessions of the Senate.

The Senate also agreed to the conference report on teh agricultural appropriation bill. The additional amount appropriated by the Senate for agricultural colleges is still in dispute, and the bill was sent back to conference on that item.

Senator Morgan reported favorably from the committee on foreign relations his resolution calling on the President for information as to any concessions Americans may have received from King Leopold for the gathering of India rubber in the Congo Free State. Mr. Morgan was given permission to file a statement on the subject, and asked that the resolution go to the calendar, as he understood several Senators desired to make an investigation of the question.

BERLIN, March 1.—Emperor William, as honorary colonel of the Russian Viborg regiment, today received in audience a deputation of that regiment, headed by its former commander, Major General Sajoutschowski. The deputation presented to His Majesty a painting representing the regiment at the battle of Sikwantun.

The battle of Sikwantun was part of the battle of Liao Yang, which began about August 24, 1904 and ended September 4.

DUTCH STEAMER FLOATED.

Went Ashore on Dyke Near Flushing, Holland, in a Fog.

FLUSHING, Holland, March 1.—Dutch mail steamer Koningin Wilhelmina, from Queensborough, England, went ashore this morning, during a thick fog on a dyke eastward of the entrance of the harbor. The passengers and mails were landed and the vessel is expected to float at high water. The Koningin Wilhelmina had 80 passengers on board when she ran into the dyke. The steamer got off at high water without having sustained much damage.

TO FRENCH PRESBYTERIANS.

Letter of Greeting From Alliance of Reformed Churches.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1.—The letter of greeting from the executive commission of the western section of the Alliance of the Reformed Churches throughout the world holding to the Presbyterian system, to their brethren of the Reformed churches in France, which was prepared at a meeting of the commission in Pittsburg last week, has been given out here by Rev. Dr. William Henry Roberts, secretary of the commission and stated clerk of the Presbyterian General Assembly. The letter of greeting is in part as follows:

"We have read with intense interest and with growing sympathy for you the tale of the recent religious crisis through which France has been passing, in which she has thrown off an imposed religion. Our admiration is unbounded for our brethren of the Reformed church of France.

"We rejoice to believe that religious freedom will be insured and the human conscience enfranchised and set free and the French people be permitted and encouraged to serve God with the freedom with which Christ makes his people free. We welcome the news of the new condition of civil government with you, and that the setting free of the church from the civil power has met with your approbation."

Y. M. C. A. BUILDING BURNED.

Adjoining Structures in Utica Saved Only With Great Difficulty.

UTICA, N. Y., March 1.—The Young Men's Christian Association building in this city burned this morning. The fire was so very rapid and hot that adjoining buildings were saved only with the greatest difficulty. The Bell telephone building adjoined the Young Men's Christian Association on the west, and this was damaged. The loss is about $122,000.

GOOD SHOWING FOR FEBRUARY.

No Reaction Occurs in Business World Despite Severe Weather.

NEW YORK, March 1. Despatches to R. G. Dun & Co. indicate that no reaction has occurred in the business world, February making an exceptionally good showing, in view of the severe weather. Boston reports more than usual activity for the season, although freight congestion is still a disturbing factor, but relief is anticipated with opening of lake navigation.

Bank exchanges for five days this week at leading cities in the United States are $2,329,263,934, making the average daily for the month of February, $483,061,000, a decrease of seven per cent. compared with February last year.

STEAMERS REPORTED.

NEW YORK, March 1.—Steamer Lucania, from Liverpool and Queenstown for New York, was in communication by wireless with the station at Sable Island when 746 miles east of Sandy Hook at midnight 28th. She will probably dock about 4 p. m. Saturday.

CAPE RACE, Newfoundland, March 1.—Steamer Columbia, from Glasgow and Moville for New York, was 110 miles southeast of this point at 8:15 a. m. She will probably dock about 9 a. m. Monday.

RHODE ISLAND MEDICAL SOCIETY.

The quarterly meeting of the Rhode Island Medical Society will be held in Rhode Island Hall, Brown University, Providence, Thursday. The program is as follows: Meeting of the House of Delegates at 10 a. m., general session at 1, followed by the report of the meeting of the House of Delegates; a paper by Dr. Nathaniel H. Gifford on "Acetonemia," a paper by Dr. William McDonald, Jr., on, "The Relationship between Aphasia and General Mental Disturbance," and a paper by Eugene Kingman on "A Case of Syringomyelia." Luncheon will be served on adjournment.

FINANCIAL.

NEW YORK, March 1, Wall Street—The stock market opened heavy, with Amalgamated Copper at 110¾, American Smelting 140¾, Anaconda 803. Atchison 102⅝, Baltimore & Ohio 110¾, Canadian 183, ex-div., Colorado Fuel & Iron 44½, Erie 34¼, Great Northern preferred 168, Missouri Pacific 70½, New York Central 126⅝, Northern Pacific 146½, Pennsylvania 129, Reading 115⅝, Rock Island 24⅜, St. Paul 145⅞, Southern Railway 25⅛, Southern Pacific 91⅛, Union Pacific 171½, United States Steel 44½, United States Steel preferred 103¾.

10—Stocks came under pressure at the beginning of business in the stock market. Declines were generally small and there was a mixture of gains, mostly in the industrials. Missouri Pacific fell 1¼, Reading 1⅛, Great Northern preferred 1 and Canadian Pacific and Rock Island preferred ⅝. Central Leather preferred rose nearly a point.

11—Animated dealing on rising prices in the Copper stocks imparted temporary firmness to the general list, and there was a rise after the opening in which earlier losses were practically made up. A subsequent attack on Union Pacific and Reading, which depressed them 1 and 1¾ points respectively, induced renewed selling in other quarters, and the market fell back to the opening level. Western stocks generally were weaker than the average. Northern Pacific fell 1⅜ and Northwestern 1½. During the progress of the buying movement Anaconda was lifted 2½, Tennessee Copper 2, Consolidated Gas 2¼, Minneapolis, St. Paul & Sault Ste. Marie 4⅝, the preferred 1, Wabash preferred 1¼ and Republic Steel preferred 1.

Noon—Money on call firm at 6 per cent; prime mercantile paper 5⅝ @ 6 per cent. Prices fell to a new low level affected by weakness of Reading. That stock fell 5⅜, Great Northern preferred and Northern Pacific 2⅜, Northwestern 3, Anaconda 4, Smelting 2⅝ and the majority of other most active stocks a point or more. Bonds were heavy.

"DANTE."

Father of Italian Literature and Successful Epic Writer Subject of Professor Shaw's Lecture.

"Dante" was the subject of the University Extension lecture last evening and the audience, larger than that of two weeks ago, was appreciative of the fine paper read and the excellent views shown by Professor W. Hudson Shaw. Before the lecture began it was voted, following the example of last year, that the next night be a guest night when each holder of a course ticket may bring a friend free of charge.

Dante is one of the few really successful epic writers of the world. As the father of Italian literature and almost the creator of the Italian tongue he has not been sufficiently recognized, although the great men of England, from Chaucer to Tennyson, have always paid him homage. His "Divina Commedia" is to the majority of us only a name, but it is wonderful as revealing the rare and solemn movements of the human mind. Despite the mediaeval theology and obsolete science of the Commedia, it penetrates to the everlasting verities and by faith quells despair. The history of Florence and the "Divina Commedia" may well be studied together as they interpret each other.

The life of the poet extended from 1265 to 1321. He came of a patrician family which belonged to the Guelphs who had the ascendency in his early years. He was banished from Florence, however, and henceforth became an adherent of imperial authority until his death. Professor Shaw considered Beatrice, by whose inspiration Dante wrote the "Vita Nuova." The contradictory theories in regard to the relationship between the two were taken up and the interpretation of Matthew Arnold was regarded as the true one. The love of Dante for Beatrice, whom he scarcely knew, was that of a poet, a mystic, an idealist. She died at the age of 23 and to the poet was the symbol of the angels. When we read in Tennyson or Browning of dazzling purity and unselfish affection we may know that they are handing on the torch of the Florentine poet.

Dante was next considered as a Florentine citizen, statesman and politician. He joined the guild of physicians and surgeons, since in 1293 Florence was organized on a commercial basis and no man could hold office unless he was a member of one of the guilds. For a while he was a physician, two years later an envoy and finally supreme governor of Florence. After his banishment, March 10, 1302, he became a wanderer to the end of his life, devoting himself to thought and aspiration. He died at Ravenna, where his bones rest. Florence asked for his body but was refused and now has only a statue to his memory in tardy recognition of her great son. The "Divina Commedia" reveals the unshrinking justice and yet the tenderness of Dante, and shows forth the eternal truths of sin, retribution and redemption. Dante has spiritualized human affection and speaks to the noble, true and great of all the ages.

Several fine slides illustrating the subject were then shown and the lecture was brought to a close by the announcement of reference books on Dante and of subjects for essays which Professor Shaw would like to receive from members of the Newport Centre. The subjects are "Dante as a Man as Illustrated by the Divina Commedia," "The Politics of Dante" and "The Relations between Dante and Beatrice." The subject of the lecture next week is "Siena."

MIDDLETOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

Aquidneck Grange met at the town hall last evening for its regular business session, after which the meeting was open to members and their friends, about 150 of whom were present. The program was arranged by the lecturer, Mrs. E. J. Peckham, and Mr. John R. Austin, chorister. The first selection was by an orchestra composed of Messrs. Frank T. Peckham, cornet; William Spooner, violin; and a pianist from Newport. Then came a solo, "Sing me to Sleep," by Mr. John Austin, Miss Gladys Kauil of Newport accompanying; piano selection by Miss Kauil; cornet solo, Frank T. Peckham; orchestra selection; song by the audience, "Star Spangled Banner," during which a large flag was unfurled, filled with small flags, which the people secured for souvenirs; vocal solo by Mr. Karl Stone, with encore, accompanied by Miss May McKenzie of Newport.

The hall was set with a large round table, decorated with flowers, small flags and candles, and draped with red, white and blue. The collation was served from this table, and coffee and tea from six small tables, decorated in a similar manner. These were in charge of Mrs. John Austin, Mrs. J. Overton Peckham, Mrs. William Hubbell, Miss Martha L. Peckham, Mrs. Pascal M. Conley and Mrs. Howard R. Peckham. The ladies were dressed in white, with trimmings of red, white and blue ribbons. The men wore patriotic neckties and sashes of red, white and blue bunting.

The grand march was led by Uncle Sam, Mr. Raymond Peckham, and Miss Helen Peckham as the Goddess of Liberty. The dancing during the evening was enjoyed by many, music being furnished by Frank T. Peckham's orchestra. The collation was in charge of Mrs. Howard G. Peckham, Mrs. Daniel Hazard and Mrs. Albert C. Young, and consisted of sandwiches, cake, doughnuts, cookies, cheese, coffee and tea.

The condition of Mr. Christopher S. Peckham, who has been critically ill, remains about the same as for two days.

FIVE HUNDRED DOLLAR PEARL IN OYSTER.

While opening oysters in a market Maurice T. Morrison of Morristown, N. J., found a large pearl in one of the bivalves of the size known as box oysters. It is oval in shape, flat at one end and about the size of a thumb nail. A local jeweller valued it at at least $500.

Leading and Moving a Big Tree.

THE MOVING OF TREES.

Modern Method of Securing Shade in a Short Time.

Way in Which This Work is Done to Improve Newport Estates.

There was a time when trees were plentiful and if one happened to be in the way it was cut down, but now thoughtful people are disposed to do everything possible to save trees and railroad companies are planting them along their tracks with an eye to the future, as they are already experiencing difficulty in securing timber for ties. The planting of forests is advocated by many, and altogether there is a tendency to look ahead to the time when if something is not done wood will be a curiosity.

There are probably few places where trees—or rather some trees—receive such tender care as in Newport. Trees on the streets, within the reach of the former highway department or the electrical service men, are not classed by the writer among those whose welfare has been thus carefully guarded. It is the trees on the estates of summer residents to which especial reference is made, and trees on these estates cost thousands of dollars each year for the attention they receive.

Formerly a level, grassy lawn was most sought for and the city has long been noted for these fine greenswards. On the earlier estates small trees were set out on these lawns, and now have grown into great barriers which quite hide the houses from the avenues. In many cases. Today this slow development does not meet the approval of owners, who demand that in a year or two the entire appearance of their estates shall change, and perhaps order that a grove of large trees shall occupy the place where a cottage or a stable stood.

One might suppose that such an order would be accepted only by a magician who is constantly doing the seemingly impossible, but the modern gardener in charge simply asks that he be provided with the necessary money and the rest is easy. Easy in one sense and difficult in another, for the trees cannot be grown to order and must be found. The finding of the proper trees is becoming more and more a task, and the prices are accordingly increasing. Sometimes a tree can be purchased for a few dollars, while again $500 and even more may be demanded. The price of the tree paid its original owner is likely to be a small fraction of its actual cost, for while tree moving has been reduced to a science in Newport it is nevertheless expensive, and the place from which it is taken must be put in good condition.

When a tree is bargained for there goes with its sale a large quantity of earth, which of course must be made good. In tree moving this earth in which the tree has grown is considered one of the greatest necessities, since in it the fine roots, tender and easily cut, are formed. They are the real feeders of the tree, and should they be destroyed to any considerable degree the top would need to be cut back to a disfiguring extent, to permit the root to be at least equal to the demands of the top, lest the tree starve.

The moving of trees is done principally in the late fall and winter, because the sap has then gone to the root and a little frost in the ground aids in taking out the tree and its ball, as the clump of earth containing the roots is called. The kind of tree determines largely the size of the ball that is taken, and there is where the gardener first displays his knowledge, for he must know how close to the tree he can dig. This determined, a trench is dug around the tree to a depth which permits the undermining of the ball without disturbing the fine roots. As the ball is undermined it is shored up with timbers, and eventually a platform is built beneath the tree, while the ball is reopened in on the sides to prevent being torn to pieces in handling. Next, by the aid of powerful jacks, the ball and tree, all weighing many tons perhaps, are lifted until they can be moved along the surface of the ground on rollers, just as a house is moved.

If the distance is great and the tree is not too large, it is loaded on a gear and on this drawn to its future resting place, where it is lowered into a hole and earth is carefully filled in around it. In carting of course care must be taken that it does not topple over, though there are occasions where the tree is so tall that it cannot be allowed to stand upright in passing along the roads, and is laid over on its side.

Since last summer there has been a large amount of tree moving here, not confined to any particular property, though at William Storrs Wells's Gardener Meikle is building a grove on the reconstructed estate which next summer will look as though it had been a generation or two in growing. Another notable piece of work was performed by J. J. Butler in moving a row of trees just below Morton Park for the widening of Coggeshall avenue. Both these are cases where large trees were handled, some brought from long distances and others moved only a few feet. When summer comes none but those familiar with the places will realize that there has been such a great change in a few months.

AN ALARM BUT NO FIRE.

Box 212 sounded about 6:20 o'clock this morning, calling the firemen to Van Zandt avenue, where a new cottage is under construction. The second story has been plastered and drying stoves were at work, sending steam out through the roof wherever it could find escape. This was taken by some person to be smoke and Headquarters was telephoned, resulting in the universal box there sounding the alarm for the box at the corner of Hull avenue.

The firemen did not linger on the scene long, and some of the apparatus had not even gone as far as the house when it was turned back. Its arrival and departure was so quiet that a man living across the street says he did not know it had been there. Few of the residents in the vicinity were aware until they came down street that the fire apparatus had been in their locality this morning.

THE WRONG TRUST COMPANY.

An item printed in the Daily News yesterday gave the impression that the Newport Trust Company, which has loaned considerable money to the city at five per cent, is giving the city only four per cent on the sinking fund deposits. This is incorrect. The Newport Trust Company holds no moneys of the city of Newport, except those deposited to meet current expenses and subject to the city treasurer's checks, for which it gives a bonus to the city. It is the Industrial Trust Company of Providence, an organization distinct from the Newport Trust Company, which holds a portion of the city's sinking funds, on which it pays four per cent interest.

THE PARKS OF NEWPORT.

Treated by Miss Stevens Before Civic League—Members Discuss Beautifying of City.

At the meeting of the study class of the Civic League at Mrs. M. S. W. Marsh's yesterday afternoon, Miss Maud Stevens read an interesting paper on the various parks of Newport, all of which, except Morton Park, are more like city squares. In 1885 Hon. Levi P. Morton gave Morton Park to the city, and $2,000 in 1895 were spent on its improvement. It is of value to the people of the lower part of the city, as well as to others. In 1854 Judah Touro bequeathed $10,000 to the city to be expended on the improvement of the Old Stone Mill lot, and with $5,000 more raised by private subscription Touro Park was suitably laid out. The other parks of the city—Equality, Soldiers and Sailors', Liberty, Battery, King, etc., were then taken up.

The next paper of the afternoon was read by Mrs. Harry G. Wilks, who spoke of the beauty of Newport as having been marred by the removal of fine old windows, doorways, trees and so forth. Many trees were cut down when the new sidewalks were laid, and although once Newport had many trees, she has now practically none. In this way her beauty has been greatly impaired. Mrs. Frank M. Greenlaw then spoke of the importance of making Long Wharf an appropriate entrance to a city as beautiful as Newport, and of the desirability of making this wharf a centre for recreation grounds, parks, etc.

Miss Ruth B. Franklin spoke on the advisability of beautifying the city along the lines of the continuation of the boulevard system, more playgrounds for the children and the improvement of the harbor front, and the last subject of the afternoon was the billboard nuisance, discussed by Mrs. Alfred G. Langley. The experiment of taxing the unsightly and sometimes indecent billboard has been only partially successful. Another proposed method of prevention of this desecration of the landscape is the boycotting of the firms who thus advertise. Public sentiment, however, is not sufficiently aroused as yet against the billboard evil, and it can only be eradicated by educating public sentiment. The meeting yesterday afternoon was interesting and profitable and provoked much discussion.

CHILDREN BURNED TO DEATH.

Bodies Found in Ruins in Fall River Tenement House.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 1.—Manuel, aged 19 years, and Belmira, seven months, children of Mr. and Mrs. Antoine Cabral were burned to death at an early hour this morning in a tenement house fire on Anthony street. The block was occupied by several Portuguese families, and the Cabral family, who occupied the second floor, was cut off from escape by stairway by the flames and had to get out of the windows. It is supposed that Manuel went back to get his baby sister and was overcome by the smoke. The babies were not discovered in the ruins until some hours later. They were burned to a crisp.

HARVARD PROFESSOR TO LECTURE AT BERLIN.

Professor T. W. Richards of Harvard University, a son of the late William T. Richards, has been chosen to go to Germany for this half-year under the agreement entered into between the German emperor and the university. He will sail March 9 and go to the University of Berlin, where he will give a course of lectures in chemistry on "The Fundamental Constants of Physical Chemistry." During the past five years the Carnegie Institute of Washington has made annual grants of $2,500 to Professor Richards for carrying on his original investigations in chemistry on the subjects of the variety of fundamental physical constants, atomic weights, energy relations, and the compressibility of atoms. The results of these researches have been embodied in six publications, four of which have already appeared and two of which are now on the press.

GEM

Incandescent Lamp Units

Are the most economical for store and shop lighting. They will give twice the useful light of an ordinary incandescent lamp with the same consumption of current. This is due to the design of the Holophane Pagoda shades, which are designated to be used with this Special Lamp, and to the lamp itself, the lamp consuming but 2.5 watts per candle power.

We will be pleased to furnish GEM UNITS on trial to all customers.

The complete unit is inexpensive in cost and operation.
